KAISER'S ORGAN GIVES THE LIE TO GERARD

Insists William Did Not Tell President Violation of Belgium Was Strategical Necessity.

OTHER GERMAN PAPERS ADMIT TRUTH

Berlin, Aug. 13.—The semi-official Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung denies the existence of the telegram alleged by James W. Gerard, the former American ambassador to Berlin, as having been sent by Emperor William to President Wilson in August, 1914, when the German emperor is quoted as having asserted that Belgium's neutrality "had to be violated by Germany on strategical grounds."

The alleged telegram which has reached Berlin by way of Switzerland, has the emperor saying that King George sent him word through the emperor's brother, Prince Henry, that Great Britain would remain neutral if war broke out on the continent involving Germany, France and Austria and Russia. The Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says:

"We are in a position to declare that no such telegram from the emperor exists. It is true that Mr. Gerard was given an audience on Aug. 10, 1914, in order to give him an opportunity of placing President Wilson's offer of mediation before the emperor.

"The president's personal message to the emperor reads as from the official head of one of the powers which signed The Hague convention and said: 'I feel it to be my right and my duty in accordance with article III of the convention to declare to you in a spirit of truest friendship that I would welcome any opportunity to act for European peace whether now or at any other time that might be better fitted to render you and all concerned services which would give me satisfaction and joy.'

"This proposal was made at the time when the armies of both sides had already crossed the frontier and when it seemed out of the question to call a halt to events. The emperor could therefore, only have his thanks conveyed to President Wilson for his offer and thereby remark that while the present moment was too early for mediation by the neutral powers, the president's friendly proposal might later be returned.

"The emperor then conversed for some time further with Mr. Gerard and explained to him the events that led up to the outbreak of the war. The emperor particularly pointed out the ambiguous and disloyal attitude of Great Britain, which had destroyed all hope of a peaceful agreement.

PLAN LOOTING OF JERUSALEM

Turks, Desperate in Surety of Doom, Pursue Policy of Extinction.

HOLY CITY MAY BE SCENE OF HORRORS

Only Hope is in British Expedition Hammering at Gates of Palestine.

Cairo, Egypt, Friday, July 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The situation in Palestine this summer is the most serious since the war began. A scheme for the looting of Jerusalem is already being executed and throughout the country the Turk has embarked on a calculated policy of plundering and killing the native inhabitants, so that if they are forced to vacate the country they will leave behind them a desert. The only thing that can save them, the only hope that buoys them up, is that the British armies now hammering at the gates of the holy land may soon drive out the Turks.

Conditions Are Described.

Information about conditions in Palestine reaches here from many sources, some more or less direct, but most of them rather roundabout. The following statement of the present situation is given to the Associated Press by an official in touch with all the sources:

"The attitude of the young Turks toward the unfortunate non-Turkish races within their empire has always been harsh and oppressive. During the war it has been an open campaign of robbery, expolitation and massacre for the young Turks, realizing that the partition of the lands under their rule is unavoidable, have determined to get as much as they can out of the inhabitants while they are in possession.

"The stupendous wickedness of the extermination of the Armenian nation cannot be dismissed as a mere device of oriental statecraft or as a particular measure aimed at a particular race for it is the Turkish policy toward not only Ar-

New York, Aug. 13.—The first edition of 100,000 copies of an "English-French Handbook," which will be supplied to the soldiers going to France, was sent to the war department today by the National Security league.

The book, which is of pocket size with a water-proof cover, contains sixty-four pages devoted to practical questions the soldier will probably want to ask in French.

The book is sponsored by a committee headed by Cecil C. Blumenthal, through whose generosity it is being issued. Before publication the copy of the book was submitted to Secretary Baker and [illegible]

DECREASE IN EXEMPTIONS

THIRTY PER CENT FAIL TO PASS

Those Who Perjure Themselves in Affidavits Will Get No Consideration.

A perceptible decrease in the number of exemptions asked was observed Monday in the examination of men for the selective service army conducted by the boards in the second and third districts. These two boards began the work of examining the men who were called in after it was discovered that the quota would not be obtained from the first number.

Practically 30 per cent of the men who were examined Monday, however, were rejected on account of physicial disability. In district 2 more men waived exemption of those who passed than those who claimed exemption.

The boards announce that if it is discovered that a man who files claim for exemption perjures himself in any way he will not be given any further consideration but will immediately be found able to serve in the selective army.

In district 1 the board announces that no definite information on the exemption claims will be imparted until after Aug. 17, the last day on which to file proof for the claim for exemption

This board, however, states that thus far 76 men have waived exemption, 12 have been refused exemption and 32 men have failed to appear. It is their belief that the quota of 121 men can be secured without calling in any more men.

Buttons Arrive.

Members of the conscription boards have received a shipment of buttons to be given those who are exempt from service. The buttons are bronze and bear the inscription, "Exempt U. S." The buttons are the size of a penny, and none will be given out until the claim for exemption has been fully substantiated.

Some Claims Rejected.

Immense Amount of Fuel Needed for War Trucks Urges Conservation.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Warning of the possibility of drastic action by the federal government to stop excessive pleasure use of automobiles during the war, in order that the gasoline needs of the United States and its allies may be met, is given in a statement issued by Director Van H. Manning, of the bureau of mines, today in which he asks the co-operation of automobile owners in stopping the practice.

Enough gasoline to care for the requirements of America and perhaps that of her allies would be saved, in the opinion of Mr. Manning, "if automobile owners of the country would stop unnecessary and extravagant pleasure riding and if owners and dealers handle this fuel in a careful and economical manner.

"A patriotic, thoughtful and unselfish response to these suggestions," he said, "would at once solve one of the

Henry P. Scherer, age 62 years, three times mayor of Fort Wayne, ex-councilman, ex-township trustee and a veteran bandsman, died at his home, 1331 Maumee avenue, Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Death was due from heart disease, from which Mr. Scherer had been a sufferer for many years.

The deceased was born in Fort Wayne, September 1, 1854, and had lived in this city all his life with the exception of a short time spent in the west. He was elected to the city council in May, 1891. BRITISH PACIFIST TO TELL COMMONS

Henderson Will Be Given a Ventilation by the Premier.

London, Aug. 13.—A statement by Arthur Henderson, the labor leader and minister without portfolio in the British war council, who resigned Saturday, was expected to be made this afternoon in parliament and it was assumed that Premier Lloyd-George would reply immediately.

It was reported that Mr. Henderson would demand the production of all communications between the British and Russian governments with reference to the Stockholm conference with a view to showing that the premier put a wrong interpretation on the Russian telegram he quoted in a letter to Mr. Henderson.

If the house of commons indorses the demand a secret session is likely to be held for the communication of certain documents reference being made in morning newspapers to a telegram which it is said M. Kerensky, the Russian premier, sent to Albert Thomas, first minister of

BARTENDERS HAVE BIG CROWD.

Fifteen Hundred People Enjoyed the Outing Yesterday.

It is estimated that over 1,500 members and guests attended the annual picnic of Bartenders' Union No. 305, at Fitzgerald grove, yesterday. Included in the guests were several people from Garrett, Lima, Huntington and Peru. The picnic was an all day affair, but the bulk of the attendance was in the afternoon only, when the scene in the large grove was a decidedly active and happy one. There were two meals, breakfast from 9 to 11 o'clock and dinner pretty much all afternoon. Chicken, cooked in the most appetizing manner, was one of the chief numbers on the menu card and it was in great demand. A band concert, boxing matches, baseball and other athletic events were the amusement features.

TWELVE HURT IN TRACTION WRECK

Going Forty Miles an Hour Winona Flyer Strikes an Open Switch.

Noblesville, Ind., Aug. 13.—Speeding forty miles an hour, the Winona Flyer, on the Union Traction company line, due here at 11:06 o'clock, Sunday ran into an open switch a half mile north of Noblesville and was ditched. Twelve persons were injured, but no one was killed. The fact that the car did not turn over probably prevented fatalities.

The injured are:

EARL MYERS, Windfall; left foot cut off just above the ankle, right leg badly mashed and may have to be amputated.

WILLIAM GRIFFIN, motorman, 712 East Pratt street, Indianapolis; face cut into shreds by flying glass in vestibule; not serious.

MRS. LUCY W. GARDNER, Bloomington, Ind., wife of Maj. Fletcher Gardner, of Fort Benjamin Harrison; head cut, hip bruised and believed to be injured internally.

HARVEY STROUD, Elwood, deaf mute; head cut, arm crushed and hurt on hand.

JESSE G. PORTER, Tipton; right arm broken between elbow and shoulder.

F. G. HILMAN, Elwood, sergeant, Troop B; severely sprained knee.

MRS. N. W. BROWN, Tipton; right leg badly crushed, suffering severely from shock.

MRS. LUCY HARDY, Tipton; right leg severely sprained.

H. F. BOCKWEG, Noblesville; left arm sprained and foot injured.

DR. C. H. TOMLINSON, Cicero; cuts on neck and severely bruised; not serious.

MRS. SARAH WERLROFF, Elkhart; bruised about chest.

W. ALLEN WOOD, Atlanta, Ga.; severely bruised; not serious.

Brakes Quickly Applied.

The car was in charge of Conductor Henry Briles, 3709 Central avenue, Indianapolis, and Motorman William Griffin, 712 Pratt street, Indianapolis. They were rounding a bend, and the switch was about 200 yards away when Griffin saw the danger. He immediately applied the airbrakes and the sudden jerk threw many passengers out of their seats, but was able to check the speed materially before the car struck the switch.

It left the main track and both front and rear trucks were knocked from beneath it, landing the car on the ground.

Motorman Griffin was thrown through a window in the vestibule. Myers was standing on the rear platform. He was thrown off and pinned under a heavy beam.

MONDAY, AUGUST 13, 1917.

RAISING THE TAX LEVY.

To meet the demands of the municipal budget for next year Comptroller W. C. Baade has been compelled to recommend an increase of 13 cents in the city tax rate. If the council does not care to take the responsibility of raising the rate it will have to accept the alternative and cut the budget to the revenues produced by the present rate.

Fort Wayne's insufficiency of revenues is not a new condition. It has been a persistent condition for many years. The rate should have been increased long ago to something like that the comptroller now recommends. For a decade or more public improvements under municipal auspices have been held back by the failure of revenues to meet the increasing necessities of the city. Now, with the cost of everything determined by war prices and still mounting, there must be either a higher rate of taxation or less municipal activity in the matter of material improvements.

Fort Wayne cannot go forward with even the usual program of betterments and maintain the same scale of expenditures in administration without getting more money. There will have to be vast retrenchment if the old rate is to be continued. On top of the increased rate is to be continued. On top of the increased cost of maintaining the government there comes to an end within less than a year the source of some fifty thousand dollars of revenues hitherto derived from city liquor licenses. That must somehow be made up or to that extent expenditures will have to be cut down. Both the police and fire departments are demanding large increases of pay and it cannot be denied that, in view of the increased cost of living, the demand has justice. In both departments the younger men will be drawn into other avenues of employment by the much better pay than they can now command unless the rates of pay in the city service are given some general correspondence with the average wage levels in other pursuits. The places of those who may quit city employment are likely to be difficult if not impossible to fill, for men young enough and capable enough will not be attracted to seek such employment while it pays much less than they can command in other lines of work.

Much can be done to cut down municipal expense. Improvement programs can be narrowed and street-cleaning, sewer-maintenance and garbage-collection and other municipal functions can be curtailed, but they ought not to be for these municipal operations are and always have been underdone. Administrative salaries offer another field for retrenchment through which some saving could be effected, but it is doubtful if such an expedient will be seriously considered.

The council is bound by a foolish campaign pledge not to increase the tax-rate during its tenure. It may feel irrevocably bound by this promise—and the more likely so since it has but a few months to remain in office and because a municipal campaign is pending. But there is not any escape from choice of one of two courses. Either the tax-rate must go up or expenditures must come down. Not soon enough to avail next year, but embracing possibilties of early and great relief in time immediately ahead a just revision of tax valuations will put the city in the way of augmenting its revenues greatly. That ought to be done at the earliest possible day and when it is done the city will be placed in better status to meet its financial problems than it has been within the memory of anyone living.

Meanwhile, the question of raising the tax-rate is immediate and pressing. It is acute at a period that is the worst in the city's history for increasing tax burdens. The soaring cost of everything, the imposition of war taxes and the certain prospect that taxation for war purposes by the federal government has only begun, all act together to make the problem of increasing the municipal revenues a grave matter, indeed.

The city must consider not only its own needs but the general situation in respect of the public's ability to stand local tax increases. Whether or not this is the time to add to the burden is the question, which is matched by the doubt that must rise as to the wisdom of slowing up in municipal progress.

HENRY M. WILLIAMS.

Fort Wayne has lost by the death of Henry M. Williams a citizen of fine spirit. He was a man of high civic ideals and he cherished to the last an intense interest in all that pertained to the welfare of this community which was his natal place and for three-quarters of a century his residence. He had faith in Fort Wayne—faith so strong that his belief in Fort Wayne's future got him looked upon by many of less vision as a mere enthusiastic dreamer. But some of those who once scoffed at him are living to see his faith justified and his dreams come true. He never doubted that a great future lay ahead of his city.

A good many years ago he was perhaps the first of Fort Wayne's men to foresee the development of electric interurban railways and the coming of a time when this city would be the plexus of a great system of these carriers. All that he previsioned has not arrived, but there has been a great development and the rest of it will come, even to those favorite projects of his own that many practical men agree have offered the best fields for development of electric transportation.

For years Mr. Williams made the public water supply of Fort Wayne his special and almost personal and private concern. He was an inveterate foe of every proposal and scheme to abandon the city's wells as source of supply and it was well-known that he stood ready to make a legal battle with his own resources against any attempt to give up the water system as it was and as it has remained. In the chamber of the city council is a banner bearing this inscription:

"National Patriotism; Civic Patriotism. Hold the Fort Against All Schemes for Private Gain."

That banner was presented to the city council almost a quarter of a century ago by Mr. Williams. It sententiously expresses the ideals for which he stood. He was devoted to his country and proved his devotion by years of service in the civil war and carries to his grave the scars of battle. He was devoted to his city with the same spirit and he proved that in many ways and would have proved it in still more and greater ways, as he sought to do, but encountered stupid and short-sighted obstructions, the folly of which are today seen and appreciated.

Mr. Williams took a lively and frequently an aggressive part in public discussions and was a frequent contributor to the local press upon topics of current importance. Editors of Fort Wayne will long recall him as a rare instance of a speaker to the public through the newspaper columns who did not believe unlimited space was his by due and title without question and without price. He rarely claimed space, no matter how little of it, that he did not enclose with his communication some honorarium "to pay," as he habitually expressed it, "for the type-setting." A time will come, we believe, when many of the things he made the object of both his prophecies and his labors, will come about. He could see far ahead. In his passing Fort Wayne sustains the loss of a sturdy and progressive citizen who stood for what was best in public conduct and achievement.

Interest in the Boys' National Reserve is growing and the volunteers for registration and enlistment are increasing. This branch of the national defense is going to become a tower of strength to the country and its government and long after the war is over the good effects of this present organization of the youth too young for arms will be visible and effective in the life of America. The ideal of service will be impressed upon these youngsters in a way they will not only understand but in a way that will arouse their pride in serving and having served. The mobilization of the whole nation for war could not be but for the enlistment of these young men for work in such channels as they can be made most useful. Besides the fine spirit of loyalty and service that will become militant in these young bosoms, there will come vast material gains to the government and nation by reason of their labors. It is a splendid movement and it not only cannot fail, but will exceed both in volume and enthusiasm all that was expected of it..

The plan to have congress take the stump throughout the nation to preach the righteousness of America's part in the war and to solidify and stir up the spirit of the country is one fine little idea. It should be pressed from now until the regular session begins in December. Quite a wonder the ingenuity of this scheme did not disclose itself long ago. Just the thing to promote regular and diligent labor in the capitol and to discourage talk. A few weeks on the stump ought to give the Jabberwock statesmen a regular field day of oratory and bring them back to the workbench content to labor and keep silence. Of course it will fail in some aggravated cases. LaFollette and Reed and Stone and Vardaman won't go out and talk war and the can't go out and talk anything else. But silence in those quarters will help a deal.

CREEL CROOL-TY.

There is nothing in the papers, Mr. Creel;
There is nothing there to tell you how we feel—
(But we do—)
There is nothing bad and scoldy,
Though our news is stale and mouldy,
And we feel we ought-a hold-a
Court on you!

There is nothing in the papers, Mr. Creel,
The talk is so, insipid that we reel—
(Yes, that's true—)
There's the war—you hide its glamour,
Though we rip and roar and yammer,
And you do not give a dam—fer
What we do!

How we wish you'd slip on a banana peel—
(Yes, we do—)
How we hope that jar would shake you,
To your far foundations quake you,
How we long that it would break you
'Most in two!

And we cannot raise a whimper and be leal—
(Swats on you!)
But we're "laying for you," cappy,
With a plan that's good and snappy,
When the war is o'er—rest happy,
We'll FIX you!

AUSTRIA READY TO SEEK PEACE; HAPSBURGS FEAR A REVOLT IN THE LAND

BY HARRY B. HUNT.

The next move for peace, according to Washington officials in touch with the inside maneuvers of the central powers, is to be made by Austria, with that country appearing in the role of mediator between Germany and the allies.

So far as Austria is concerned, this peace movement will be in good faith. She is tired of the war and would welcome its end. For months she has held in line only because she dared not break with Germany. She sees now that, even in event of victory, Germany and not Austria, would benefit principally by the terms of settlement, and German domination would be tightened over Austria as well as over Germany's enemies.

The moving factor in Austria's peace proposals, however, is her own internal situation.

Economically, Germany is far better off than Austria. Crops have been poor, reserves of food are low, and war taxes have ground the mass of the Austro-Hungarian people down to absolute want.

Austria's people, a mixture of a score of different tribes and nationalities, have never been welded together into the solid union effected by Germany. Their national spirit is less developed, their tribal tendencies more pronounced. Unrest and dissatisfaction has grown with the burdens of the war until it is now reaching the danger point.

Recognizing this condition, the men at the head of Austria's war councils dread another winter at war. Cold and hunger and suffering not only for the army but for the mass of the civil population is certain if the war outlasts the next four months. Will the people stand it, or will they revolt?

That is the big question and the question the house of Hapsburg most fears. Peace, or peace negotiations that would drag through the winter months, alone promise security against a civil uprising.

As understood here, Austria is attempting to win Germany's consent to undertake peace negotiations early this fall. Germany, still confident of her ability to maintain a stalemate on land and to make headway at sea, will consent to peace negotiations on terms that would make the war practically a draw.

But a draw for Germany means defeat for the allies. For it means the German military menace will remain, and the peace so reached would be but a breathing spell before another war.

For this reason the United States and her allies cannot consent to undertake peace negotiations until they clearly have the upper hand militarily. There can be no peace without victory that will "make the world safe for democracy." The only peace that will be effective will be one resulting from the smashing of Germany's forces in the field, not from the fine phrases of diplomats around a council table.

There will be a lot of talk about "peace by negotiation" through these next few months.

That's Germany's game. Unable to win by force of arms, she now hopes to save her face by plausible talk—then suddenly knife us in the back when we think we have secured peace.

The sooner the American people understand this and turn deaf ears to all this talk of a compromise peace, the sooner we will be able really to win this war and have a real peace.

WAR NO EXCUSE FOR SUSPENSION OF THE LAWS FOR CHILDREN

BY FREDERICK M. KERBY.

"It would be better to lose the war than sacrifice the children to it."

"The very last resource we should consider yielding is the nation's most important asset—its children."

In these two sentences Julia Lathrop, head of the children's bureau of the United States department of labor, answered the question, "Should the United States suspend during the war the child labor and compulsory school attendance laws in the states so children can 'do their bit' in the nation's factories and farms??

"If this war can end war and make democracy safe it will be worth great sacrifices," said Miss Lathrop, speaking slowly and emphatically. "But," she continued, "it will not be worth sacrificing the children."

"The ultimate treasure and resource of any people it its young life—the only surety of the continuance of the race. Is not our fundamental necessity therefore to safeguard that reservoir? What good will democracy be if there is no race left worth while to exercise it?

"Thirty million children are in our care under 16 years of age; about 20,000,000 of them in our schools. Slowly we have arrived at certain measures of protection for them—by state compulsory education laws, child labor laws, mother's pension laws, and now at last by a national child labor law.

"Shall we abandon these standards in the interest of increased production for war needs? It is important we face squarely the risk before us and determine whether the schooling and work of children is a necessity or a luxury.

"At the beginning of the war, England and France relaxed the regulations governing school attendance and protection of child workers. They found it did not pay. Munitions output, stimulated at first, began to fall off. The British munition workers committee urged the restoration of former restrictions.

"This year, notwithstanding the increasing exhaustion of the war, England and France have taken determined measures to restore or improve their old standards.

"The British board of education has demanded a budget for 1917-1918 of nearly 4,000,000 pounds more than last year's.

"This heroic struggle to protect the children in countries so desperately involved in war as are France and England is in strange contrast to the suggestion that the federal child labor law be suspended or repealed.

"It is more important than ever to protect the children."

LIBERTY BONDS IN MARKET.

(New York World.)

The government's 3½ per cent Liberty bonds are now being traded in on the stock exchange at quotations slightly under 100. They fell below par when a report was circulated that the government would again be in the market by Sept. 15 with another great issue of $2,000,000,000 or more at the same rate. That report had no official basis, but it persists.

What these speculative people do with their bonds is of no particular concern to the great mass of the more than 4,000,000 people who subscribed for the issue. Their security is as absolute as it ever was. But it is of some concern to the government in floating further issues that this same great mass of the people who took bonds on small installment payments shall not have had time to pay up a third of the price before there is another summons in patriotism to buy more.

TEUTONIC CONDESCENSION.

In a pamphlet published twenty years ago by the Pan-German league, we find the prophecy that by the year 1950 "the Germans will have the consciousness of being a race of masters. Nevertheless, they will so far condescend that the less important work shall be done by the foreigners under their domination."

They have "so far condescended" with regard to the Belgians, Serbs, Poles, Roumanians and inhabitants of northern France. We are now engaged in the work of making sure that their condescension shall never reach as far as the United States of America."

Uncle Harry Explains Draft and Exemption

As Uncle Harry came from his office late in the afternoon his attention was attracted by the sound of fife and drum and he halted while a company of boys marched by.

They were commanded by a veteran of the Spanish-American war whom Uncle Harry knew and as they exchanged military salutes Uncle Harry caught sight of Joe and Jimmy in the ranks. Military discipline did not allow them to speak to him, nor he to them, but he was much gratified to see their military bearing and their great interest in their work. After the company passed, Uncle Harry smiled and said:

"Good boys, that's the stuff of which American patriots are made."

And when, after supper, he went around to the boys' home they were there, all cleaned up and ready for the evening talk.

"Well, boys, I saw you this afternoon," said Uncle Harry. "I didn't know you were soldiers. Why didn't you say something about it?"

"We saw you too, Uncle Harry," said Joe, "but we did not dare to speak to you. It would have been against orders."

"What about the company, boys?" said Uncle Harry. "Who organized it and who drills you?"

"Joe Smith came over and spoke of it first. He said his uncle who was a captain in the Spanish war would drill us and then we would know something about it if the war lasted long enough for us to enlist.

"We call ourselves the First Home Guards and we drill every afternoon from 4 to 6.

"We are both privates, but Jimmy is working to become a corporal and I hope he'll get it," said Joe.

"Good for you, boys," said Uncle Harry. "You have the right spirit. Keep it up.

"But what shall be talk about this evening in our Current Events class?" Joe spoke up. "I would like to know about the draft. How do they pick out the men to serve and who does it?"

"That's a very interesting question, Joe," said Uncle Harry, "and I will tell you about it. The president has ordered 687,000 men drafted. As many of these will be exempted for different reasons, there was about double that number drawn in order to allow for those who will be excused from service."

"How did they do it, Uncle Harry?" asked Helen. "Did they draw numbers in every state in the union and send the numbers on to the government in Washington?"

"No, Helen," said Uncle Harry. "The drawing was all done in Washington in this way: A great glass bowl was provided in which 10,500 black capsules, each containing a number was placed. A blindfolded man constantly stirred these capsules up and another blindfolded man took one at a time which he handed to two announcers who stood on each side of the bowl.

"These announcers broke the capsules as they took them out and called out the number to three tally clerks and the slip was then handed to another man who verified the report of the announcers. Then another person wrote the numbers plainly on a large blackboard in regular order. When this board was full it was taken out and another blackboard put in use. The first blackboard was photographed, cleaned off and returned and the two blackboards were continued in use alternately until the drawing was completed. The drawing took two days to complete."

"Yes, but just a moment, Uncle Harry," said Joe. "You said this glass bowl held 10,500 capsules and yet over one million men were to be drafted. How could they draft so many if they only had 10,500 numbers to draw?"

"That's a very fair question, Joe," said Uncle Harry, "and I'll answer it. The country is divided up into very many drafting districts. No district has a greater number than 10,500 and when a number was drawn it applied to every man bearing that number in any district in the entire country, no matter whether he lived in Pennsylvania, Florida or California. The first number drawn was 258 and by that act every man holding number 258 all through the United States was drafted. So you see by this ingenious labor-saving and absolutely fair method, time was saved and a great work performed.

"What men drew these numbers, Uncle Harry?" asked Joe.

"Well," said Uncle Harry, "in the start very prominent men officiated. It was an event of national importance and was started off with all dignity."

"Who drew the first number?" said Helen.

"Secretary of War Baker," said Uncle Harry.

"Was he blindfolded-" inquired Joe.

"Oh, yes," said Uncle Harry, "and so were all who followed him.

"Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate military committee, drew the second number; he was followed by a number of others.

"The result was awaited by people all over the country with great eagerness. After it was completed Mayor Smith, of Philadelphia, requested the secretary of war to donate the glass bowl to the city of Philadelphia to be deposited in Independence Hall. The bowl did not belong to the government, but the gentleman who did own it very willingly agreed to deposit it in that appropriate place, and so with the Liberty bell which rang out the good news of the birth of the nation, this glass bowl showing the patriotism of the people 141 years afterwards, will have a fitting place."

"Well, Uncle Harry," said Joe, "that certainly is interesting. But now tell us about the exemptions. Who are exempt and how are they exempted?"

"The boards of exemption," said Uncle Harry, "are appointed by the president in the different districts and act upon the reports of doctors and the claims made by the men who are drafted.

"Men who aren't strong enough for the work or who have lost teeth or fingers or who are lame or have weak hearts or lungs or are in any way unfit are naturally exempt after examination. Then those who have people solely dependent on them and those who are doing more valuable service for the government in their present service than they would as soldiers are exempt from active service."

"Well," said Joe, "I'd hate to be exempted if I was old enough to serve."

Uncle Harry smiled.

"If I was old enough to go," put in Jimmy, "I would volunteer."

Uncle Harry chuckled aloud.

"Good for you, boys," said he. "That's the right spirit. And I'll wager that when the time comes Helen, too, will be doing her bit. Won't you, my dear?"

"Yes, Uncle Harry. I will—somewhere," Helen answered quietly.

Editor's Note—Uncle Harry will be glad to answer inquiries, either in this column or by mail, provided letters are signed with the full name and address of the persons writing. The correspondents' names will not appear in the articles.

The Cyrus Keiser road improvement bonds, totalling $5,397, and covering the cost of improvement on a Troy township highway, were purchased by the First National bank of Columbia City, at a premium of $15 with accrued interest. The Fletcher-American National bank and Breed, Elliott & Harrison, of Indianapolis, also bid.

Mrs. Mary P. Schlabach, aged 66, born in Germany, is dead at her home northeast of Etna, from cancer of the stomach. She leaves eight children. Mrs. Ola Heine, of Fort Wayne, is a daughter.

James W. Gaff, son of Homer Gaff, and Miss Hazel, daughter of Charles Raypole, highly esteemed residents of Smith township, were wedded here Saturday forenoon by Rev. D. B. Kessinger, and will reside in Smith township.

Mrs. Nancy E. Firestone, aged 19, wife of J. B. Firestone of this city, who came here several months ago from Marion, eloped Tuesday with Alexander White, who has been employed rather unsteadily in the Wayne Show Case factory here. The announcement of the elopement was not made until Saturday, when the young husband of the young wife stated he had found a letter in his home, after the departure of Mrs. Firestone and White. The letter, written by the wife, begged her husband to obtain a divorce.

The Elmer Demoney ditch in Smith township, the total estimate of cost of construction of which is $4,325.80, was up for sale Saturday in the office of the county commissioners. Two bids were filed for the construction of the 8,768 lineal feet, Erastus Goodyear bidding $1,200 and George Wolfe $1,535.50. The tile work, 7,200 feet of it to be done, was bid in at $3,124 by the Summitville Drain Tile company; $3,150 by the Bippus Drain Tile company; $3,140 by the Portland company, and $3,125 by the Krick-Tyndall company. The total of the lowest bids exceeds the estimated cost, and no contracts were awarded Saturday.

The St. John's German Lutheran church congregation and the St. Peter's congregation, both located in the Eberhard settlement southwest of the city, which were formerly united, until they split over differences thirty-seven years ago, may reunite. The pastor of the first named church was until recently Rev. W. A. F. Grimm. The pastor of the other church is Rev. H. G. Jungkuntz of this city, who also has charge of a pastorate here. The original church was a brick edifice, and following the split over differences, the St. Peter's congregation was formed and erected a white frame church in the same vicinity. In case the congregations reunite, Rev. H. G. Jungkuntz of this city, will probably have charge.

The annual reunion of the Dinius family will be held here Sunday, August 19, on the old south ward school campus, and a program will be given. H. G. Pence of this city is president, and Attorney W. H. Kissinger of this city vice president of the family.

DID BIANCA DE SAULLES ROB THIS ACTRESS BEAUTY OF RICH HUSBAND?

Ruth Shepley, actress now playing in San Francisco, was to wed Jack De Saulles within a few months, according to her friends. De Saulles and Miss Shepley had much in common—a knack for the outdoors, a love for horses and dogs, and a daring as automobile drivers. Her entry makes the case four-sided—Bianca, Joan Sawyer, Ruth Shepley and De Saulles. Miss Shepley protests De Saulles was "the most popular man on Broadway" only in the sense of his high character. She says he never danced, and hated cabarets.

AT THE PALACE

PRETTY BABY A HIT.

Jimmie Hodges and Jean Tynes Turn Them Away.

With the eccentric nut comedian, Jimmie Hodges, as the central laugh figure supported by his lovely co-star, Jean Tyne, and a big time company including a wealth of feminine beauty, Pretty Baby is the ear tickling, eye pleasing farce with music which is opening the season at the New Palace. Scores were turned away last night unable to gain admittance to the theater as the house was over sold before the performance even started.

Pretty Baby is a high speed combination of fun, girls, song, dance and scenic spectacles. One of the biggest scenes is the patriotic number in which each branch of the service including the Red Cross and finally General Pershing and President Wilson are presented while a swinging war song, "Hello France," is being sung.

Hodges is a nut comedian of the best school. He has the trick of making his freakish observations seem extemporaneous which of course makes them all the funnier, while in Jean Tynes, the company is graced by a girl of great personal beauty possessing a charming singing voice. Elmer Coudy, the black face funster, Al Garbelle, the light comedian and dancing demon, and Norman Coudy, a remarkable basso, are some of the other principals whose work makes Pretty Baby a big time musical comedy.

Make Meat Flavor Do Duty by Spreeading It

Spread the meat flavor over other foods and so economize on the qutntity of meat consumed, says the United States department of agriculture. Here is one way to utilize left-over meat by spreading its flavor.

Meat Turnovers.

Chop the meat. If the quantity on hand is small, mix with it left-over potato or rice. Season with salt, pepper, onion, etc. Place filling on circular pieces of biscuit dough about the size of a saucer. Fold over the dough and crimp edges together. Bake for about one-half hour in a hot oven.

A brown sauce made from two tablespoonfuls of flour browned in two tablespoonfuls of butter to which a cupful of water or stock and a half teaspoonful of salt is added, may be served over the turnovers.

Canning Fruit Without Sugar

Fruits will keep perfectly well in water when properly packed in jars.

Buying large quantities of sugar for canning summer fruits not necessary. If expense is prohibitive sugar may be added in small quantities at time of serving, as pie-filling, salad material, for baking, etc.

The flavor will not be exactly the same as when the fruit is preserved in syrup, but the healthfulness and food value are equal.

GEORGETTE DRAPING OVER SATIN SEEN IN LATE MODELS.

Ever so many of the latest models show tunic effects, georgette draping over satin, or satin over gorgette. Even tricots, twills and gaberdines elaborate themselves with collars, cuffs and vestees of georgette, beige appearing on navy, gray on plum color, or cowslip on black. Georgette launders perfectly, and so has the advantage over taffeta and some of the uncertain satins.

Jersey suits trimmed with fur are among the excitements of early autumn displays. Jacket buttonholes, piped with color, contribute a touch of gayety and charm. Suit skirts in most cases are rather plain with shirred backs, and pockets are either the plain patch or the crescent. There is much plaiting to be seen and no flares.

Coat linings are joyous and inspiring, running to vivid shades and entirely fresh designs. Golds and yellow tones and all shades of blue are considered good, no matter what the color of the suit. For blue serges red linings are selected. Large splashy florette designs are printed on satins and oriental weirdnesses loom up on the new crepey stuffs.

TEN FLOWER BASKETS.

Ten flower baskets will be awarded to ten old ladies at the Congress at Robison Park on August 16.—Each old lady who registers in the pavilion will receive a duplicate numbered tag. Seven baskets were given last year, much to the old ladies' pleasure and delight. One of them drank coffee at a pavilion table after the theater exercises. The waiter suggested that she place the flower basket on the table while she ate; but the old lady refused to do so, lest her treasure disappear.

SINK DISINFECTANT.

For a disinfectant for a sink, pour down a gallon of boiling water mixed with two tablespoonfuls of soda and a teaspoonful of ammonia. This will dissolve all greasy matter in both sink and pipe.

TAKING OUT AN INK SPOT.

If ink is spilled on the tablecloth immediately melt a candle, taking some of the tallow, spread it over the ink patch and leave it to dry. Afterward was tablecotth and all traces of ink will have disappeared.

Use only fresh, sound fruit; wash the fruit; remove spots when necessary; place all fruit except berries in a square of cheesecloth or wire basket; dip all except berries in boiling water for ½ minute for peaces, and 1½ minutes for apples and pears; plunge for a moment into cold water; skin the fruit if necessary; leave whole or cut, as preferred.

Pack fruit in hot jars; fill jars with hot sirup or boiling water; place tops and rubbers in position; tighten tops, not air-tight; place jars on false bottom in washboiler; submerge jars two inches; put cover on washboiler and let water boil for 16 minutes for peaches, and 20 minutes for apples and pears; start counting when water begins to boil.

SOUTH WOOD PARK

FORT WAYNE'S SUPREME SOUTH SIDE DEVELOPMENT

SOUTH WOOD PARK IS NOW READY TO RECEIVE THE PEOPLE OF FORT WAYNE

Planned and Developed by Hilgeman & Schaaf, "of Harrison Hill."

To the People of Fort Wayne:

South Wood Park, which already has claimed the title of "Fort Wayne's Supreme South Side Development," is not a dream.

It is a reality.

We invite you TODAY to come and see for yourselves.

Without blare of trumpets to proclaim to you what we INTEND to do, we have gone ahead quietly to prepare for sale this splendid place of future beautiful drives, homes, parkways and landscape gardening. And now that the work is far enough along to permit you to comprehend the bigness and the thoroughness of the plan, we give you a cordial invitation to become acquainted at once with South Wood Park.

South Wood Park A Descriptive Name.

You who are familiar with the beautiful tracts included in this largest of all south side developments will recognize the descriptive character of the name. The large areas of woods are graced by hundreds of immense forest trees, representing the finest native specimens.

How South Wood Park Is Being Developed.

A personal visit to South Wood Park at the earliest possible moment will give you the fullest idea of the method of development of these great areas of forest and open grounds. We have placed miles of temporary low fencing which outlines the driveways and the lot lines.

All Modern Improvements For South Wood Park.

The present condition of the development does not give you, however, a full understanding of the finished streets or of the modern improvements to be provided. These include: Paving, sidewalks, ornamental boulevard lighting, sewer, water and gas.

The Winding Driveways In South Wood Park.

We are particularly proud of the design of the long stretches of driveway through the wooded portions of South Wood Park to save hundreds of the finest forest specimens and at the same time give the purchaser liberal areas of tree-covered parkways.

What the Development Means to Fort Wayne.

The most enterprising cities of America have attained to their place in the estimation of the world through the efforts of those citizens who have unbounded faith in the future of those cities, and who have worked hard to made their "dreams" come true. We have that same faith in Fort Wayne. "South Wood Park is a step away ahead of the times," someone has said. But we know that Fort Wayne will prove to the world her worthiness of the faith we have in the making of this great south side tract into a spot which shall help her upward and onward in her march toward greater things.

And in the Meantime—

We urge you to get acquainted with South Wood Park. Visit the place often. There is much to see and to learn. We are not going to tell you that we want you to buy a home-site there and to join with many others in developing the place into a spot which shall be the pride of all Fort Wayne. When you see South Wood Park, the thought will come to you without our suggestion. And that's why we ask you to make yourself at home in this beautiful place.

THREE BIG DAYS

The first three days of Patterson-Fletcher's Half Price Sale brought larger crowds to their store than any previous sale in the history of the concern. Thursday, the first day, people came from far and near and the firm were well pleased with the results. Friday brought another large crowd, but the climax came Saturday, when three thousand, seven hundred and eighty-six customers made purchases in the store, and all during the day and until closing time the fifty salesmen were hardly able to handle the eager crowd of buyers that thronged the store.

"When we moved into our new home we thought we would have enough room to care for the largest crowds that ever came," said Mr. H. P. Fletcher, when we talked with him Saturday evening, while he was busy helping the boys care for the customers, "but from the looks of the crowds that came today our space could well be larger."

In view of the fact that cotton and wool today is over 50 per cent. higher than last year and that Patterson-Fletcher own their stocks at the old price, the values they are selling are very unusual and the buying public is taking advantage and buying not only for immediate, but for future use.

Today, the fourth day of the sale, finds their store well filled with people who are buying liberally of the many hundreds of values to be had in the various departments.

Our Greatest Industrial Asset

An efficient railroad is the greatest industrial asset a community or state can possess.

It is the foundation of the whole industrial structure.

The far-reaching fingers of transportation touch field, mine and factory and galvanize them with life.

Business would become one gigantic paralytic but for the life-giving throb of the locomotive.

The New York Central Lines

"America's Greatest Railway System"

operating over 12,000 miles of railway in the most populous section of the United States, employing nearly 200,000 men and equipped with every device and facility for the safe and efficient handling of passengers and freight, are essential to the prosperity of the territory they serve.

To continue to render the public and the government efficient service demands constant expenditures of millions of new capital, for a railroad is never finished except in a community that is dead.

The necessary funds must be secured in competition with world-wide borrowing and only as the public and the government see to it that the railroads are granted rates that will provide a fair return and that regulation is constructive, will railroad securities attract new capital.

BOYS GIVEN SHOT IN ARM

Signal Corps Members Are Made Immune from Typhoid Fever.

FOUR OR FIVE OF YOUNG MEN FAINTED

Major Ryan Goes to Fort Harrison to Conduct a Court Martial.

Literally speaking the members of Company B, signal corps, received a "shot in the arm" Monday morning. The boys all underwent treatment to inoculate them against typhoid fever germs. The boys were also vaccinated against smallpox.

Four or five of the young men were unable to stand the treatment of getting the serum shot into their arms and as a result became faint. Cots were provided at headquarters and the men were allowed to lie down.

The signal corps went through its ceremony of being mustered into federal service Sunday evening, when the final muster roll was taken by Captain Charles Davis, of the Second Indiana infantry.

Provided the clerical work is finished Company E's federal muster roll will be taken Monday afternoon. Those men who have not as yet been inoculated against smallpox and typhoid fever will also be given the same treatment as members of the signal corps received.

Marching orders have not been received by either of the two companies as yet but it is believed they will arrive before the end of the week.

Trying a Deserter.

Major Thomas F. Ryan of the United States army recruiting station, went to Fort Benjamin Harrison, where he will conduct a court martial for a deserter by the name of Burns.

Dr. Eberly has been ordered to leave at once for Fort Benjamin Harrison and Dr. Rawles has received a tentative order to go to Fort Riley, Kas. He is waiting for final instructions and expects to leave about August 15. Both doctors had offices in the Gauntt building.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Read from their son, Jay Read, who is at Fort Riley, Kas., that he has been commissioned as a captain in the infantry division. Captain Read is thirty-six years old and for the past fifteen years has been engaged in the practice of law in Kansas City. He expects to come to Fort Wayne, August 17, having been granted a furlough until August 27.

Hardendorf writes that he expects to leave Urbana in five weeks for Rantoul, Ill., to complete the course and receive a commission. The young man's father was for many years employed as a hammersmith at the local shops of the Wabash Railroad company.

Patrolman Ernest F. Paul, of the local police force, has received a telegram from his son, William F. Paul, telling of his safe arrival in France. Paul is a sergeant, being a member of the efficient organization which is supplying food to the American soldiers "somewhere in France." Paul was formerly assistant salesmanager for the S. F. NEW ATTEMPT TO END KANSAS CITY STRIKE

Traction Company Willing to Accede to Demands Before Strike.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 13.—The next move in the traction strike which began here last Wednesday when more than 2,000 employes of the Kansas City railways company quit work, tying up transportation so completely that not a car has run since, today was placed squarely before the strikers.

Following a conference between the street railway officials and their dissatisfied employes which lasted far into last night, the company presented a tentative proposal to the men which, along general lines, conformed to their demands, made before the walkout was percipitated. Reinstatement of discharged employes and recognition of the men's organization were the cardinal points embodied in the proposal. The traction company offered to re-employ men discharged after August 1, of this year, but would not do so discriminate against employes because of union affiliations.

The strikers are expected to make reply today.

THE GREAT WAR MYSTERY

BY F. M. KERBY.
(Staff Special.)

Orange, N. J., Aug. 13.—Here is the wonderful war mystery!

More thrilling than trench capture. More important than wheat. More romantic than air duels. More engrossing than these and all the rest, because it is still a mystery.

What is the mysterious, secret invention Edison, America's wizard, has perfected to destroy the U-boats. This is the big question mark of the entire world war.

Here are the facts:

1. Almost a year ago it was widely announced that America's electric genius had a marvelous scheme by which electric rays would set off explosives at great distance.

2. Several months ago a prominent member of the naval consulting board of experts announced American inventive genius was about to turn against Germany a mysterious destructive agent that would rid the sea of U-boats.

3. July 14 Edison himself, in one of his rare statements, issued to his subordinates, said crptically: "We now have all the rebellious elements under control. Today will be remembered as the time when we removed the last jinx from the record."

4. July 20 the navy department permitted the announcement that a device to detect U-boats ten miles away was nearly perfected.

5. A high government official said only a few days ago that Edison had just completed a task that would make him the greatest man in the world.

6. The Westinghouse company leading makers of electric appliances, is enlisting 1,000 men willing to be absolutely locked in from the outside world, holding no communication with it, for ten months, making "war munitions."

7.—Edison, white-haired, had been working for months, 16, 18, 20 hours a day, in a veritable frenzied debauch of sleepless nights and days, on the submarine problem before he made his electrifying announcement.

8. No government official will say a word.

Now—what is the conclusion?

1. Was the announcement of the new rays of remarkable power somebody's dream?

2. Was the naval consulting board expert either a liar or a maniac? The board is not made up of that kind of men. Furthermore, his statement was not denied.

3. Did Edison boast wildly when he said he had solved the last war puzzle? Well—you can number 100 magical inventions from Edison's brain. Can you number one boast?

4. Was the navy department talking through its hat when it said U-boats were unmasked 10 miles away.

5. Is the high government official who said Edison had finished a job that would "make him the world's greatest man" Crazy?

6. Is the Westinghouse company turning itself into a prison because it believes that will attract labor in these times of labor shortage?

7. Why doesn't some high official put these speculations to rest by an official denial of them all?

Isn't it plain that, instead of more than the facts being revealed, there exist more facts than have been hinted at?

Jules Verne predicted the U-boat.

John P. Holland built it.

H. G. Wells in his "War of the Worlds" told how the invading inhabitants of Mars used against the earth folk a powerful light ray that burned everything in the path it swept.

Is Edison ready, through a Westinghouse-made machine, to turn this light ray on the German sharks?

The wonderful war mystery is the most gripping war thought today.

It will be the greatest world news item tomorrow.

Wouldn't you like to know, in advance, just what it is?

Thomas A. Edison at work in his laboratory at Orange, N. J. Below is Secretary Daniels, of the United States navy giving Edison a congratulatory handshake—FOR WHAT?

GARRETT SHOP TEAM DEFEATS WASHINGTON

Next Game Will Be Played With Philadelphia at Baltimore.

(Special to The Sentinel).

Garrett, Ind., Aug. 13.—The Garrett shop team in the B. & O. league won its game with Washington Sunday by a score of 3 to 1. Jack pitched a one-hit game, which should have been eliminated for it was a lucky scratch and due to the slowness with which the ball was handled. They are now ready for the game with Philadelphia at Baltimore on Labor day. Superintendent Jaskson promised the boys new suits if they won the game Sunday.

The second game of the day was with Rockhillville and they were easily de[illegible]

ALLOWANCE FOR ALIENS

Will Be Accepted in Navy if They Have Taken Out First Papers.

MAY THEN EASILY BECOME CITIZENS

Two Local Boys Enlist in the Naval Branch Monday.

To stimulate naval recruiting an order has been sent to the local officer, A. G. Kaftan, pertaining to cooks and bakers, which will now allow them to enist for the period of the war only, the same as radio men. The regular enlistment period of four years for apprentice seamen being withdrawn as an inducement to fill up this branch of the sea service.

Together with the announcement regarding length of service, it is announced that liens from countries with which the United States are not at war will be acceptable in the United States navy as cooks and bakers. In addition to this their becoming American citizens will be facilitated. The order reads that aliens "may become citizens of the United States without proof of residence on shore and without further requirements except proof of good moral character and a certificate of the secretary of the navy that such honorable service was actually rendered. This rule, however, it was pointed out, applies only to cooks and bakers.

Evidence must be shown, however, that aliens wishing to come under this class must have taken out first naturalization papers. Not only are such persons eligible for service, the order states, but having served honorably for one year, may become citizens of the United States.

Two more recruits were sent to Indianapolis Monday morning by the local recruiting officer. They were Edward Thurber Groves Jackson, 1230 Swinney avenue, and Albert Frederick Wesling, 336 Brackenridge street. Both applied for enlistment as apprentice seamen and passed the examination here and will be further examined at Indianapolis before being sent to the naval training station.

Enlistment in the navy is progressing rapidly here, according to the local officer, but the navy is far from filled up. Many men are applying for enlistment now who know they are to be called up for examination in the army draft in a short time. It was recently made public that men who have passed the examination for the navy will have cause for exemption from the army draft board. It was stated that any person who knows that he will have to go before the examining board for the army may apply for enlistment in the navy and having passed the examination may be exempted from army service even after he has received his notice to appear for examination.

AGED FATHER SAYS HE WILL NOT HELP SON

Andrew Bennett and Step-Daughter Returned from Toledo, Ohio.

The aged father of Andrew Bennett, 52 years old, who was brought back Sunday from Toledo, O., on the charge of contributing to the delinquency of his step daughter, Mary Frazier, has refused to help his son out of his present predicament. The senior Bennett says he has gone to the rescue of his son on many other occasions, but that now he is through. The son will have to fight it alone so far as the father is concerned.

Both Bennett and his stepdaughter were brought back from Toledo, by Deputy Sheriff W. H. Cole. The girl is charged with absenting herself from the jurisdiction of the juvenile court. She had scarcely landed in Toledo when she was taken in custody. While at the detention home she is alleged to have attempted to escape and when caught is said to have pointed a revolver at Mrs. Rosa Castel, matron of the institution. The matron ordered her to drop the pistol and when she refused Stella Szymenski, an assistant matron, grabbed the weapon from her hand. She is said to have smuggled the revolver into the home in her handbag. Bennett is a prisoner at the county jail, and up to late hour was unable to furnish bond.

AUTO THIEF ALLOWED TO GO UNPUNISHED

Carl Johnson, 704 West Creighton avenue, stole an automobile Saturday night. However, he is a member of the signal corps in this city, which was drafted into federal service a week ago when the company mobilized. He was allowed to go unpunished on this account.

Following a special session of court Sunday morning Judge Kerr ordered that the young man be allowed to go. This action has caused much comment in police circles.

It is said that this is the third time that a member of one of the military companies in the city was found guilty of a charge in police court, but each time was turned over to the commanding officer of the company of which he was a member.

The prosecuting attorney it is understood is to start an investigation and it is probable that Johnson will be brought back into court to face the charge. According to the new law on vehicle taking, the crime which he is charged with is punishable with imprisonment for six months.

The machine which Johnson stole belonged to Conor Blackwood, proprietor of the Conwood hotel in Chicago. Blackwood allowed his machine to stand in front of the Anthony hotel Saturday evening while he and his wife went in to register. He returned a few minutes later and found the car was gone.

He was directed to police headquarters where every patrolman was notified. Blackwood and his wife in another car started a search for the car themselves. Near the Lake Shore hotel Mrs. Blackwood saw a car coming and recognized it. Mr. Blackwood stepped in front of the car and stopped it.

Johnson endeavored to escape, but was unable to get away. Blackwooo seized the young man and held him until the police arrived. Johnson said he came from a respectable family and that this was the first time in his life that he had ever taken anything.

The young thief said that he had heard that the signal corps would leave the city Monday and that he had taken the car to go to Churubusco to say good-bye to his brother.

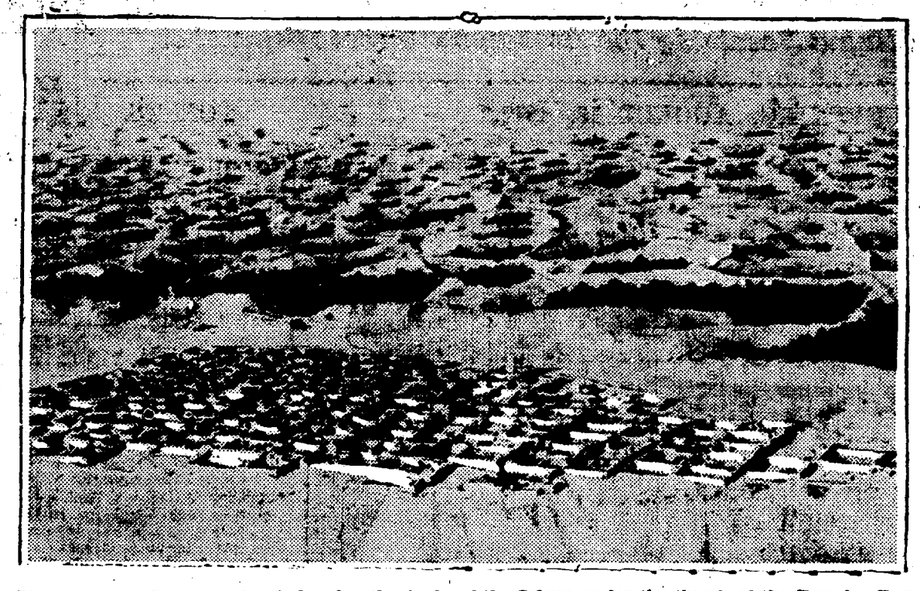
IN THE GREAT SAHARA, WHERE NATURE TRENCHES THE SAND, AS SEEN THROUGH THE MAGIC EYE IN THE SKY



The mysterious Eye in the Sky is keeping the Arabs of the Sahara under the thumb of the French. Dame Nature is the only warrior who can trench the desert sand. So the French army officers refused to throw away their men putting down Arab guerilla warfare started by German spies and money.

With a few airplanes they patrol a territory three times as large as France. One squint at the manbird usually frightens the natives into submission. If that doesn't, one bomb does. Not a French life has been lost, but the desert is as orderly as a desert can be.

No traveler's word picture can make the great Sahara as interesting as this sky view, taken from an airplane at high altitude. The old Moorish fortress city of Tiksebt, which outruns history, is shown in the foreground, and, behind, date palms growing between sand dunes, and fed by underground flow of water.

BRITAIN SEEKS THE SUPERMAN

Nietsche Idea is Adapted to National Need and is Making Headway.

TO TURN GERMAN CULT ON GERMANY

Remaking Young Race of Anglo-Saxons Goes on in War Crucible.

A Place in England, July 16.—(By Mail.)—British military authorities are convinced that the day of the superman has arrived and that the part he has to play in ending the war and regenerating the world cannot be overestimated.

A representative of the Associated Press who was permitted to visit a great training school as the guest of the foreign office, obtained an insight to the remarkable change brought about in the British viewpoint during the past three years.

The British are not only putting forth all their energy in further perfecting their fighting forces but are actually and earnestly devoting themselves to the development of their youth in a manner calculated to fit them for any or all events which may arise in the years to come.

Britain Grows Stronger.

If the Germans cherished the idea of elminating Britain as a world power, Britain, it is said, far from being beaten, now sees with a clearer vision than ever before and is preparing to turn the scales against her adversary in such a way as they may never again swing back. While statesmen are being made or unmade with the changing fortunes of war, the great silent forces of a nation proud of its traditions and thoroughly aroused to its own shortcomings are constantly marching in an almost endless chain, from training schools to battle fronts and back again. Stretched over many miles of rolling hills, carpeted with green foliage is the school wherein hundreds of thousands of British youth are being taught to master themselves, as one of their instructors expressed it, "so that they will be better prepared to master their enemy and live their lives as they would live them."

Training in Self-Belief.

"Use your eye and brain" is the new British watchword which is being instilled into the British youth with all the force at the command of his superiors.

"We are training our men to believe in themselves," said the general commanding the school. "Each must not only feel that he is better equipped physically and mentally than his antagonist, but he must be able to demonstrate it. That is the lesson we have learned from the world war."

As the average Britisher is naturally a sportsman, his games are being made to play an important part in his training. In shooting, bombing and all the various art sof warfare, these are proving invaluable to him.

"I have been very much impressed with the fact that most men who are prominent in our games distinguish themselves at the front," declared the general. "They are keen, thoughtful and clear-sighted and for that reason become the best fighters.

The "Three B's" of Warfare.

Unlike the armies of other belligerents, the British are discarding what are termed weapons of frightfulness and instructing their young men in what they are pleased to call the "Three B's"—the bullet, bayonet and bombs.

"Experience has shown that the rifle and bayonet are the best defensive weapons with which to arm a man," asserted one official.

"If he has the proper physcial and mental training and knows how to handle his rifle and his bayonet, he is certainly the match, if not the superior of his adversary."

With a single eye to their task the British have established elaborate systems of trenches wherein the young men are taught every conceivable method of present-day warfare.

Message to America.

Young officers and others recommended for promotion are regularly brought back from the front for intensive training of from ten to twenty days, so that they may return to the front and instruct their respective units. In this way their men never become stale and are ever fit and ready for any emergency.

The message the British would impart to their American allies was summarized as follows:

"Train your young men to be physically and mentally strong; train them to think for themselves—make them supermen, in the modern sense—and the world will be made safe for democracy."

CAME TO CITY FROM MEXICO

Drew Knife When Told to Get Away from Power Station.

Admitting that he came to the United States from Mexico and that he had been in Fort Wayne for the past three weeks without taking out restricted zone permit papers, Frank Koch, a German, was ordered Monday turned over to the sheriff of Allen county, who will turn him over to federal authorities for investigation. He was tried in police court on a charge of drunkenness Monday morning.

Koch was arrested Saturday night when he was ordered to stay away from the power station on Spy Run avenue. He was told to get away, but insisted on returning. Upon being told the third time, Koch is alleged to have taken out a knife. One of the employes of the power house whipped out his gun and held him until the patrol arrived.

Koch, who gives his age at 37 years, said he left Germany seven years ago. He emphatically denied that he had ever served in the German army. He said the authorities had turned him down when he presented himself for examination.

In his cell in the police station Koch said that he fled from his native country seven years ago and became a fireman on the ship Kronprinzessin Cecelie, which was interned in the Boston harbor shortly after the beginning of the war. Koch states, however, that this was nearly seven years ago and that he deserted when the ship reached an American port on one of its trips to this country.

Officials are prone to believe that the man is a German spy and that he escaped after the ship was interned in Boston harbor. This theory bears more weight, say officials, since the men admits that he was in Mexico the first part of the year. They say that it is probable that he received instructions there from another representative of the German government just what was expected of him.

The man, who does not appear as a German, seemed surly in police court and kept watching an imaginary spot on the floor while Prosecutor Hoffman was asking him questions.

Koch stated that he had taken out his first papers of naturalization somewhere in California, but that he had lost them. In speaking of the permit papers he said he had taken out a paper in Texas and that he did not know he was compelled to take them out again in this city. He could not show the permit which he said he had taken out in Texas.

The man said that he was a brewery worker and that he had been employed by a local brewing company since arriving in this city.

AMERICAN GUN CREW U-BOAT PRISONERS

Men in Charge of the Defense of Torpedoed Tanker Held.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 13.—Sinking of the American steamer Campana, a Standard Oil tanker, with the probable capture of its captain and four members of the naval guard by the attacking German submarine, is announced by the navy department.

The department statement says:

"The Standard Oil tanker Campana, American steamer, was sunk by a submarine on the morning of Aug. 6, 143 miles west of Ile de Re. Forty-seven survivoors reached land in safety. It is believed the captain of the steamer and four of the armed guards are prisoners on board the German submarine."

The Campana was formedly the steamship Dunholme. It was built in 1901 at West Hartlepool, Eng., and was registered at 3,313 tons gross; 2,138 tons net. It was 335 feet long, with a beam of forty-seven feet.

CAMPANA 38TH VICTIM.

New York, Aug. 13.—The Campana, reported sunk by a U-boat, was the thirty-eighth American merchant ship destroyed through the operations of German and Austrian submarines and raiders since the war began.

Thirteen of these ships were sunk before the United States entered the war, April 6, 1917. The total tonnage of the ships lost is about 113,000 tons, including 64,000 tons sunk since April 6.

No American ships fell victims to the central powers in 1914, and only two in 1915, and the same number in 1916.

When Germany began its unrestricted submarine warfare, however, attacks on American shipping became more frequent, and America lost nine ships between that date and the time when the United States declared a state of war existed with that country.

The first American ship sunk was the William P. Frye, Jan. 28, 1915.

GUN CREW SINKS U-BOAT.

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 13.—Another German submarine has been sunk by the guns of a merchantman, if the gunners of a British freighter, which arrived here, were correct in their belief. The vessel, which was [illegible] France, sent it to the bottom. The Britisher encountered the submarine on its last outward trip from this port.

One shot destroyed the periscope. The second and third were followed by an explosion and the submarine disappeared. The gunners were confident the submarine went down involuntarily.

The captain and the six members of the crew of the American schooner John Hays Hammond, victims of a German submarine July 27, while on a voyage from England to Iceland, have arrived here on an American steamship. Cable dispatches telling of the loss of the schooner had said nothing of the fate of the crew.

The men said they were picked up by a British destroyer, 340 miles northeast of the Irish coast, after being twenty-four hours in their life boats.

Chiefs Drop Fast Contest to Peoria; Kowalski Unsteady

Crowd of 2,600 Witnesses Second Defeat of the Locals.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 12.—Fort Wayne dropped the second game of the series to Peoria in a fast contest, 3 to 1, which was witnessed by 2,600 fans. The crowd would have undoubtedly been greater than this had it not been for threatening weather. Nelson's pitching was too much for the Chiefs, while Kowalski was touched frequently by the Distillers.

Kowalski pitched consistently in the third inning when he allowed three runs and the game to go to Peoria. At other times Kowalski was invincible. In the fourth session Smith, Fort Wayne's leading batsman tripled and scored the Chief's only run an a Texas leaguer to left. This was the way the Chiefs got their single marker.

Peoria's runs in the third were scored by some fast base running aided by Kowalski's bobbles. Pechous singled and was followed by Callahan who doubled to right. On a wild heave by Kowalski, Pechous scored and Callahan went to third. Nelson drew a bye and Bashang singled to left scoring Callahan. Nelson went to third on Jackson's sacrifice and came in with the third marker on a short sacrifice fly to right, Glockson's throw to the plate being wide.

After the third inning Kowalski settled down and pitched air-tight ball and had the Chiefs been hitting the game need not have been sewed by Peoria's two-run lead.

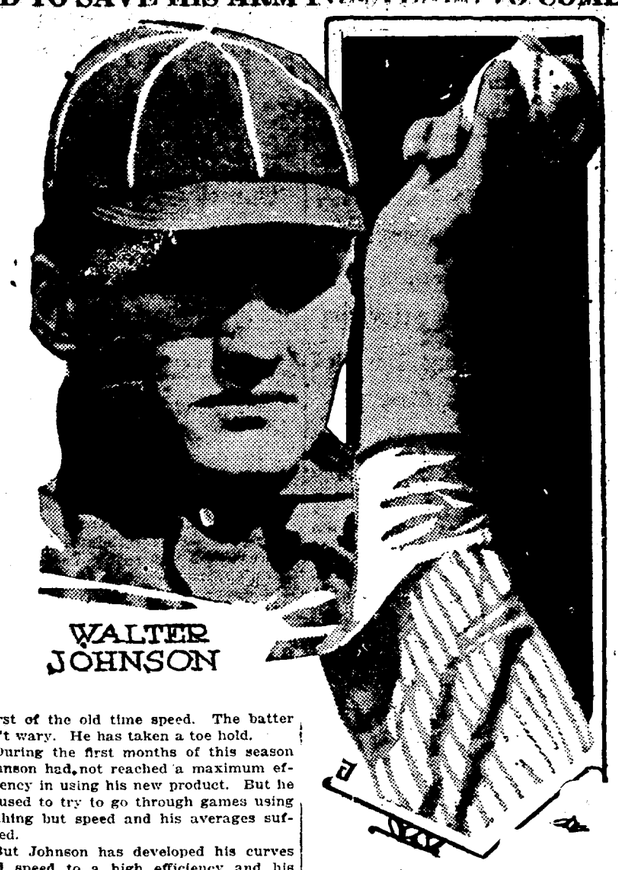
WALTER JOHNSO NEXPERIMENTS AT EXPENES OF 1917 RESCORD TO SAVE HIS ARM FOR YEARS TO COME



WALTER JOHNSON

(By Paul Purman).

Walter Johnson has come to the point where he must seriously consider the possibility of not winning twenty games this season.

For Johnson, this is unheard of.

He fell eblow that mark in 1909 it is true, but that was his first year in big league company. Since then he has always been well above the twenty game mark.

With less than two months to go Johnson has won 12 and lost 13 games. For the first time since 1909 he is below the list of .500 pitchers at this stage of the season.

With the exception of Joe Bush, of the Athletics, he has lost more games than any other American league pitcher.

In former years it has been true that Johnson has lost games because of poor support and weak hitting. In the height of his career a considerable number of his losses were due to his club being unable to make a run or two.

But this has not been the case this year. Johnson has lost many games when his teammates have piled up half a dozen or more runs behind him.

To break into the class of twenty winning pitchers this year Johnson, if he pitches no more frequently than he has, must win four out of five of his games.

It is scarcely probable that he will pitch in many more than ten full games this season. This means that he must pitch superball and must not save himself.

All of which brings up the question:

Is Johnson going back?

This cry is often raised when a ball player does not come up to high marks of other years, but in this case I would say no emphatically.

Johnson has been experimenting. In this case the experiments were costly to his record but not particularly to him.

Johnson had reached the point where he realized his magnificent speed could not be entirely depended upon for many years. It was up to him to devise other means of winning ball games.

Johnson has not lost his bulletlike speed—he is just conserving it. In the meantime he has been developing a good slow ball, which in years to come may rival Matty's fadeaway. He is spending a great deal of time perfecting his curves.

Watch Johnson go through a ball game and notice the difference between the Johnson of today and the Johnson of three or four years ago.

Then every ball zipped by the plate with terrific speed. The batters, as a general rule, were waiting warily.

Now there is an assortment of curves and slow balls and very occasionally a burst of the old time speed. The batter isn't wary. He has taken a toe hold.

During the first months of this season Johnson had not reached a maximum efficiency in using his new product. But he refused to try to go through games using nothing but speed and his averages suffered.

But Johnson has developed his curves and speed to a high efficiency and his latest games show he still has a lot to keep the batters guessing.

Johnson is not going back. He has several years before him, and his resolution in taking up curve and slow ball pitching show that he is seriously interested in pitching winning ball for many seasons.

The best of American league batters declare Johnson has as much stuff on the ball as he ever had, but is not using so much speed.

Clark Griffith told me recently that he expected Johnson to be as effective in 1918 as he has ever been in his career.

Eddie Ainsmith, who always catches Johnson, declares he has all of his former speed when he wishes to use it.

So much for stories that Johnson is going back.

Stories that Johnson has not been trying may be dismissed.

Walter Johnson is one of the most earnest, hard working players in the game. When he is on the mound he is always putting forth his best efforts. Also Johnson's high priced contract expires this year and he has additional incentive for being out there trying.

PENNSY AND BOWSERS STRENGTHEN LEADS

Leader and Second-Place Team Winners in Shop League Games.

In the shop league games Saturday the Pennsy and Bowser teams came out on top, winning from the Turner and General Electric teams, respectively. The Bowsers now have a good hold on the first place in the shop league, with the Pennsy outfit safely entrenched in second place.

The Pennsy-Turner match was an interesting one all the way, the railroaders winning out in the ninth inning 10 to 9, after the gym men had apparently acquired a safe lead. Distel and Grimes opposed each other in this game, and both were hit rather freely. Oberwitte, Hargrave and Lowe led in the hitting.

The game between the Bowser and Electric works teams was rather one-sided, the oil tankers winning 8 to 1 in a six-inning affair. Errors by the losers were responsible for most of the Bowser runs. The scores:
Pennsylvania ..... 0 1 3 0 0 1 0 3 2—10
Turners ..... 0 0 0 0 1 2 2 3 1— 9
Batteries—Distel and Haslup; Grimes and Rabus.

Batteries—Diederick and Hoffer; Archbold and Lee.

Summer Complaint.

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results."—Advertisement.

FOUR FOOTBALL STARS ON CINCINNATI TEAM

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 13.—The Cincinnati Nationals boast of a quartette of players who made themselves famous as gridiron players before their entrance into professional base ball. The four men are Manager Christy Mathewson, Jim Thorpe, the Indian, Earl Neale and Bill Kopf.

Matty was a line plunger and a famous drop kicker when he was with Bucknell. Thorpe, as a member of the Carlisle Indians, was ranked as probably the greatest player the game ever saw. Neale attended a college in the middle west, and was a great man in squirming past opponents, while Kopf was one of the best players on a Fordham eleven.

NORTH RANDALL TRACK SCENE OF SECOND MEET

Expected to Be Greatest Event of Grand Circuit Racing Schedule.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 13.—The second meet at the North Randall track this season opens today and continues throughout the week, Saturday being held in reserve in case rain caused a postponement during the first days of racing. Horsemen predict this will be the biggest and most successful meeting of the grand circuit schedule, with five races per day, practically assured. Originally twenty-one races were scheduled, but the entry list was so heavy track officials have decided to split four of the largest events, making a list of twenty-five races. In each of the split events the horses will race for the same amount of money that would have been hung up had the entry list been smaller and one section started:

Today's program follows: 2:09 trotting, three heats, $1,200; 2:07 pace, three heats, $1,200; two-year-old trotting "news" sweep stake, two in three added money; 2:17 pace, three heats, $1,000.

COLLEGE SPORTS

Kalamazoo college will resume all athletics in the fall, according to Coach R. O. Young, who is planning his football campaign.

Despite the loss of Taylor, MacGregor, Hall Emerson, Casteel and a string of reserves, the coach is optimistic in his view of the season's prospects. Fort Sheridan and the regular army have called eight of the 1916 champion M. I. A. A. team and he expects to lose several more through the national army.

Young is basing his hope on the incoming class, which it is expected will eclipse last year's record. The list of new students include a fine array of young athletes, the coach says.

The 1917 schedules, besides the usual games with the M. I. A. A. teams, will provide contests with the University of Michigan, University of Detroit, M. A. C. and Notre Dame.

East Lansing, Mich., Aug. 13.—Chester L. Brewer, the new athletic director of the Michigan Agricultural college, will take up his duties about September 1, according to a letter to President Kedzie. He was to have reported August 1, but was summoned by the government to take charge of physical training at Camp Funston, Texas.

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 13.—Walter O. Lewis, former Indiana university athlete, has been chosen athletic director of Earlham college, according to announcement made by the athletic authorities of the college here. Lewis, who at present is deputy prosecuting attorney of this (Wayne) county, coached the Earlham baseball team last spring and won much favorable comment.

Prospects for athletics at Earlham are bright and Lewis plans to take charge of athletics September 24, the opening day of the fall term.

LINCOLN LIFES ARE LEADING THE LEAGUE

Victory Over Hicksville Gives Insurance Men Clear Title.

As a result of their victory over the Hicksville Browns in the second game of the double-header at League park Sunday, the Lincoln Lifes are now out in front in the Indiana-Ohio league. The Browns won from Convoy in the first game, and thus earned the right to meet Mart Cleary's team in the second.

The Lincoln Lifes hit the ball hard, getting eleven bingles off "Lefty" Gilbert for a total of nineteen bases. Bud Devilbiss led in the sticking, with three hits out of four times at bat. Although the insurance men had six errors in the field, they did little damage.

The Browns took the lead in the first inning with two runs, but were held in check from that time until the eighth, when they scored two more, repeating in the ninth. Two big innings were enough for the Lincoln Lifes to win, getting four in the third and four in the seventh. Oestermeyer opposed "Left" Gilbert on the mound and held the Ohio men to five hits.

In the firs tgame of the double-header the Browns had things easy with Convoy, winning 8 to 0, in a five-inning match. "Lefty" Bowman pitched for Convoy but was given ragged support. The scores:

FIRST WOMAN WATCHMAN A PATRIOT

Miss MARY TRAVERS NEW ALBANY IND. FIRST RAILROAD CROSSING WATCHMAN AT HER POST

ON ACCOUNT of the war" is an old, old expression to us now, but it never had more of meaning and accuracy as an explanation for unexampled things than it has today. It has been used to explain everything from a shortage of chicken feathers for feather beds to the extraordinarily high cost of a ton of coal; and now it is given us the reason for this story.

"On account of the war!" That expression, like sweet charity, covers a multitude of sins—and erables the sinner to escape unscathed by public opinion; so——

This story will tell about what women can do "on account of the war." Not only what they can do, but what they are expected to do, what they already have undertaken in some instances.

To the elder of the Daughters of the Revolution who have heard their grandmothers tell of the stirring times in which their men fought for the liberty of the United States; to those old, lovable, gray-haired women who sacrificed their loved ones that the North and South might decide in the only possible way the differences that threatened disruption of the Union; the tale of what women today must do will seem preposterously unreasonable.

Perhaps they have read and been told of what European women have done since the beginning of the war and how thousands of their sisters in the munitions centers of this country aided the allies with their skilled fingers and hands; but they have never made personal application of the things they have read and listened to.

They never have visualized themselves at a swiftly-revolving lathe, at a noisy, thunderously thumping machine for days and days, performing an allotted task that must be done to provide necessaries for the army. They have never grasped the fact that each one of them, as well as the people in foreign countries, might have to contribute of personal service in back-wearying, ear-deafening labor; and even with the declaration of war they have not been convinced of the need for women in those spheres of life and work formerly held, almost sacredly, to be man's exclusively.

Most of them remember the days of the other wars—especially the war between the states. They know what was done in those times: That the women stayed palpitatingly at home, nervously preparing bandages and lint, breathing a prayer hourly that none of the essentials they made might be needed for a loved one Theirs was a work of mercy and waiting; today, woman is called on to labor in the field of destruction, or to enter the pursuits of peaceful commerce that men may be released for the duty of fighting.

Women Crossing Watchmen.

There will be no weary days of waiting for news from the front while the women of the neighborhood gathered in morosely silent groups—today for the women there will be action—eager, hurried, helpful action, uniting with the sacrificing efforts of father, son, brother, and sweetheart to bring more quickly to an end the days of destruction.

Big business has been quicker to realize all these things than have the women themselves. It is hard to tell which should have the greater interest in women's new phase, the woman herself, or big business, for whom she will work. Probably it is the latter.

With the first call for volunteers to fill up the ranks of the regular army and to provide trained officers for new armies, business began to experience shortage of male help. Now that the army draft bill has become a law, and it seems likely that at least one young man in every seventeen will be called away immediately, with others to follow soon afterwards, business can see that it is going to have to curtail its activities to an alarming extent or—obtain the aid of women.

The railroads have been the first to act. All the big Eastern lines, the lines operating out of Chicago and the Southern roads with headquarters in St. Louis have taken steps to provide for the use of women in every place that they can suitably perform the duties of positions formerly filled by a man.

In Boston women have been listed for mobilization and 1500 of them are ready to man street cars just as soon as the men now holding these jobs are called to the service of their country.

Detroit also has taken this step and the street car company there has listed a number of women who are ready to take the places of motormen and has announced that it will establish a training class for those desiring to learn the operation of street cars.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, on its lines west of the Ohio River, was the first to put into actual operation its plan for the employment of women to relieve men for military duty and a few days ago the first woman crossing watchman in the United States assumed her post at New Albany, Ind., guarding a crossing over which thousands of vehicles and pedestrians pass daily. She is Miss Mary Travers, 42 years of age, and she has undertaken the work from a patriotic spirit. Here's her own story:

"No," she said, as she acknowledged her 42 years with a bright Irish smile, "I did not have to go to railroading to make a living, but I like the work, and when the opportunity came and I found I could release an able man for Uncle Sam, I took it, to do my little bit to help along.

"And so you want to know who's who at this crossing? You have my name and age. My parents came from Kilkenny. I was born in Cincinnati on old Fulton street, now Gladstone. My father is not a railroad man. By coming here I released John Gossett, a man who was crippled in a wreck during the great flood of 1903, who was sent to Seymour, Ind., to release an able-bodied man for service.

"No, I never expected to receive all the notoriety, the reporters and photographers coming to me, on taking this job, but, of course, I enjoy it as well as any society woman, and everybody is good to me," and she laughed heartily.

Miss Travers is of sturdy, medium build, has bright, laughing gray eyes, firm mouth and a mass of brown hair, done up in a large, tidy knot at the back of her head, on which she wears a brown leather cap with a silver badge over the peak with the word "watchman" engraved upon it. She wore a brown sweater and a serviceable black skirt of heavy material. She is intelligent, self-reliant and attends to her duties with care at the crossing, where the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern has its freight depot for the supply of New Albany, a city of some 25,000 people, and where wagons and trains are continually crossing. She goes to work at 6 a. m. and quits at 6 p. m. and during the twelve hours has very little time to sit down in her watch shanty.

Rain or shine, Miss Travers has to be out with her signal flag. The ladies of New Albany have made her a white silk flag with a mahogany staff.

"Since the women may vote," Miss Travers called after the reporter, "they must do their bit for the government."

Miss Travers took the place through the suggestion of H. R. Gibson, division engineer, a friend of the Travers family, when Miss Travers hinted that she was willing and able to do her share in helping out.

Others Follow the Leader.

The railroad did not stop with this one acquisition to its crossing watchwomen force. Another was immediately put to work at Springfield, Ill., and two at Lawrenceville, Ind. Since that time others have been placed on the system, and the road hereafter will use only such men as are totally unfit for even the light duties about a freighthouse or in other departments of railroad work, using women at the crossings wherever volunteers for the work can be obtained.

This same road began a campaign to forward the use of women in all its departments except those directly concerned with the operation of trains. Circular letters were sent to all heads of departments asking for information as to the number of women that could be employed in those departments to do the work formerly handled by men, and the officials, according to reports, have been co-operating fully, designating places for women wherever it seemed likely the gentler sex could satisfactorily fill even a portion of a job which a man has been attending to in the past.

As a result of the campaign, within a space of a few days, 45 women clerks, 16 stenographers, 2 operators, 5 telephone operators, 3 janitresses and 2 agents were placed at their new duties and a corresponding number of young men released for actual military service. This number has been greatly augmented since and is being increased daily, as men volunteer or are drafted from the service of the railroad to other work.

Nor will the labors of women in the railroad field be limited to the occupations named. It is planned to use some as dispatchers, after a period of training and careful watching under the tutelage of men experienced in such work, and even the civil engineering corps has been asked to use all the women who can be found mentally equipped for the work of maintaining the transportation lines in suitable condition to handle a large volume of heavy traffic.

According to advices from Eastern points, the Pennsylvania, Erie, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Lehigh Valley, the New York, New Haven and Hartford, the New York Central and the Long Island railroads are putting women in clerical positions as fast as they can be obtained to fill the places of hundreds of men called away from the railroad service when the militia of the Eastern States was mobilized.

The Erie has placed a number of women at work as ticket sellers, a post requiring wide knowledge of the country, through familiarity with railroads and their routes, times and runs of trains and the prices of tickets, as well as just which of many possible forms is the proper one to use for a certain trip. They also are planning to replace their train auditors, who collect tickets in place of the conductors, with women, and it is possible that the time will come when even the conductors themselves will give way to uniformed women, in so far as passenger trains are concerned.

Women have been employed in the freight departments to a greater extent than any other in the past, but their work mostly has been stenographic. Now they will begin to take over all clerical work and will even assume the superintendency of car loading in freighthouse cars for small shipments, a post that requires almost as much knowledge as that of ticket seller.

In the past it has been customary to employ young men in these jobs, using them at posts to test the reliability of the youngsters, a fact that made the positions stepping stones to responsible railroad positions. These large numbers of young men who are able, intelligent and accustomed to strict obedience of printed orders, violation of which would cause loss of freight on the part of the railroad company, will be released as part of the country's finest material for a new army; and they will be incorporated into the federal service just as quickly as the draft law becomes definitely effective.

On some roads it always has been customary to employ women, generally dependents of men incapacitated in the service, as car washers at the terminals. Now all the roads have adopted the plan of employing women for this work, and thus has been released a large number of men too old for actual military service, perhaps, yet able enough to take up the work of younger men in some other department of the railroad, thus, through several switched employes, releasing other men for the country's defense.

No longer is it the part for "men to work and women to weep"; no longer do the limits of Red Cross possibilities mark the extent of women's belligerent activities, for now in the hour of need, as always when he is stumped, man turns to women for aid and sustenance in carrying out his projects for their mutual welfare; and woman, herself, is delighted to find that new and unexpected, but long-desired, fields of usefulness have been opened up to her "on account of the war."

BRING DOWN TWO PLANES

Over Score Persons Are Killed, Including Children.

London, Aug. 13.—Two of the German machines which yesterday evening raided the English southeast coast watering places were destroyed by British naval airplanes. The official statement issued by the government today says that one of the machines was a Gotha airplane and the other a seaplane.

About twenty German airplanes raided the southeast coast of Egnland last evening, killing twenty-three persons, including nine women and six children, and injuring fifty others, according to an official announcement made last night.

Two Others Hurt.

The casualties were at South End, according to the statement. This is a town in Essex, forty miles east of London. The statement adds that considerable damage to property was caused also by the bombs dropped at South End. Nearly forty bombs were dropped on the town.

Bombs also were dropped on the seashore resort of Margate, eighty miles southeast of London.

Two men were injured at Rochford, but four bombs dropped on Margate did little damage. The latest statement follows:

"Enemy raiders caused considerable damage at South End, where they dropped about forty bombs. The casualties thus far reported are:

"Killed, eight men, nine women, six children.

"About fifty people were injured.

"At Rochford two men were injured, but no damage is reported. At Margate four bombs were dropped. One uninhabited house was demolished, but there were no casualties."

"About 6:16 o'clock this afternoon a squadron of about twenty enemy airplanes were reported off Felixstowe (in Suffolk.) They skirted the coast to Clacton (Essex), where they apparently divided, a part going south to Margate (in Kent). The reminder crossed the coast and went southwest toward Wickford, near which place they turned southeast and dropped bombs in the neighborhood of South Bend (in Essex)."

menians but Arabs, Greeks and Jews, in fact, all peoples who are subjects of the Turk but are not themselves of Turkish blood.

Policy of Extinction.

"While there was some prospect of being able to retain or even enlarge their empire, the Turks although treating their subject races badly, did not actually seek to destroy them. Today, knowing themselves doomed, it is their calculated policy to kill off the bulk of the inhabitants of Palestine and extort the last ounce of money and goods from them so that if they are forced to vacate the country they will leave behind them a desert of poverty stricken and depopulated land.

"Their policy is not consistent with military or economic needs and is not supported by even the slenderest pretexts for its necessity. It is dictated solely by a savage brutality. The Turk has in the past shown some aptitude for diplomacy, if little for statesmanship, but the modern young Turk of the committee of union and progress is an infinitely worse tyrant than his predecessors and all the native savagery and blood lust that are his heritage found vent in deliberate and organized crimes. He works untrammeled by diplomatic convention and reckless of the inevitable consequences. Germany has exercised no restraining influence and indeed shares largely in the Ottoman guilt.

Repetition of Armenia.

"Palestine is today somewhat cut off from the world and news of the dreadful happenings within its borders reaches civilization slowly. It is usually impossible to learn the fate of individuals but a good general idea of the situation is in our hands.

"The disaster that befell the Armenian nation is now being meted out to the mixed non-Turkish population of Syria and Palestine. Families are being massacred, towns and territories evacuated, communities plundered and given over to pillage.

"The town of Gaza was recently ordered evacuated. In pursuance of the order the inhabitants were forced to set out upon their journey with nothing but the clothes they wore. All their belongings were left in their homes and these were immediately delivered over to the Turkish troops for loot. There were the usual scenes of wanton destruction and wilful defilement. No women were spared the customary accompaniment of a Turkish visitation.

Jerusalem Is Next.

"Gaza having been pillaged and the soldiers not yet being satisfied, it was proposed to carry out the same program at Jerusalem. The notables, however, protested that, having seen the exhibition at Gaza, they prefered to chance the risks of war to enduring the certain agony of a forced evaculation.

"This answer and protest displeased the pasha so much that he promptly had the deputation transported to Anatolia and is taking special measures to see that his scheme of looting Jerusalem is not hindered by organized passive resistance among the inhabitants.

"The system of oppression in Palestine is thorough but it is also stupid and wasteful. Cavalry horses are allowed to graze on such of the scanty young crops as the wretched inhabitants have been able to grow, so that there will be no grain this year in a country which is already well nigh bare of corn."

One case which relieved the monotony of examination routine by causing a certain amount of laughter occurred last week. A man who is employed by a local bank was called for examination. It is said that in his talks with other people he had allowed them to arrive at a definite conclusion just where his sympathies lay in this war. He was passed by the board as physicially fit. He stormed about this fact and insisted that he should have been rejected. He stated he intended to file claim for exemption. However, he did not and will march right along with the rest of the boys in freedom's great army ing it the most difficult problem to handle now. The movement of most other foodstuffs is about the same month by month.

BOARD WILL RULE GRAIN

Preparation of a form of license under which grain elevators and flour mills will operate after September 1 was begun today.

WHEAT PITS DESERTED.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—The federal government having determined to take over the wheat crop and distribute it, those who went to the visitors' gallery of the board of trade today turned instinctive eyes toward the wheat pit. There, where a tumultuous mob normally is vociferously responsive to scraps of information concerning exports from Argentine or even the appearance of a rain cloud over some dry area in Kansas, there was only silence. Two or three idle traders were seated in chairs near the pit. No one was in it. The clerk ordinarily who sits enthroned in a cage above the pit recording quotations, rested his chin on hand. At the opening he chalked up "2.14" as the sole bid for September wheat, and resumed his reflections. There was no longer a string of messenger boys scurrying between his cage and the telegraph wires. One boy is retained, but at the moment he was down in the street listening to a brass band. The whole scene suggested dust and cobwebs.

Months ago the board adopted maximum prices and other restrictions which practically eliminated speculative trading. News became impotent to effect prices. They were so regulated that even the big news that the wheat farmer would have but one customer failed to reanimate the trade.

Grain men expect to co-operate with Mr. Hoover in the big task of marketing the crop. James A. Patten, one of the big men of the board, said the measure seemed necessary. "There isn't wheat enough to go around," said he. "The government's measure will prevent conflicting interests from bidding the prices skyward to get what there is. While the board fixed maximum prices for futures, it did not touch the spot commodity. Actual wheat for immediate delivery is selling at from $2.40 to $2.60 a bushel, and even higher in Kansas City."

"Possibly during the conversation the emperor wrote a memorandum for the ambassador so that he might not announce anything to Washington that would be incorrect.

"In that case it would be a matter of record destined to assist Mr. Gerard's memory, but it would not be a communication from the emperor to President Wilson."

The Cologne Gazette says there is no apparent reason to doubt the genuineness of the emperor's telegram as published by Mr. Gerard. The newspaper says it cannot see how its contents can serve as a fresh proof of Germany's guilt, as it only gives new evidence of the cunning and ambiguous policy followed by Great Britain in the days prior to the outbreak of the war.

The Neueste Nachrichten of Munich, Bavaria, says it does not matter whether the emperor's message to Wilson is authentic, as it only proves the emperor's lofe of peace.

survey today of the coal situation, preparatory to fixing the price at the mine mouth.

"Under the terms of the contract entered into," said Judge Carter, "my business is to arrive at a fair price for coal at the mine. That is as far as my authority extends."

Approximately 12,000 coal miners are on strike in various mines in Illinois, and a conference of operators and representatives of the executive board of the miners' union has been called to attempt to compose their differences.

Representtaives of the coal mine owners' union and railroads held a meeting today at which Judge Carter presided, for the purpose of agreeing upon details of methods to determine what constitutes a fair price for coal.

MORE MINES CLOSED.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 13.—Thirty-two of the forty coal mines in the Springfield district, representing a daily output of 20,000 tons, are shut down today as the result of strikes among drivers and motor men, and ten thousand diggers are in enforced idleness.

Indications are that not a single mine in the district would be in operation tomorrow. Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois district, United Mineworkers, today ordered all strikers back to work, and declared there would be no wage conference while the mineworkers violated their agreement.

Farrington declared agitation by the state council of defense for lower coal prices and charges that exorbitant profits were being made by operators were responsible for the unrest.

THREE TIMES IN THE CHAIR

cal life until 1914, when he was lected to the office of trustee of Wayne township. He served in that position until 1916.

Because of technical irregularties in the township trustee's office, Mr. Scherer was removed, following the filing of impeachment proceedings. However, Mr. Scherer retired with all the accounts cleared up and no public loss ensued by reason of his conduct of the office. Mr. Scherer and his friends always insisted that he had no intention of defrauding the township. Even his enemies were charitable enough to believe he meant to fully rectify the irregularities even though they had never been discovered. There was a technical violation, however, and for that reason his retirement followed.

There was never a more likeable citizen that Henry P. Scherer. He made friends readily and kept them. He was always Henry P. Scherer under all circumstances. Mr. Scherer's decline was much more rapid following the death of Mrs. Scherer, who for months prior to her death was almost a helpless invalid.

The deceased was one of the pioneer musicians of the city, and was one of the organizers, and for many years president of the Musician's union. He was one of the pioneer members of the old City band, in its day a famous organization. When not actively engaged in political life, Mr. Scherer was in the real estate business. At one time he was connected with the City Carriage works. He was a life-long member of the St. Paul's Lutheran church.

The deceased also belonged to the Bruederliche Unterstuetzings Verein. Surviving relatives include five children—Fred Scherer, Mathilda Scherer, Louise and Margaret Scherer and Mrs. George Jacobs, jr., all of this city. Two brothers, John and William Scherer, and two sisters, Mrs. A. C. Schmidt and Mrs. Elizabeth Menze also survive.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

PEACE TALK HAS BOARDS

munitions, declaring that the Russian government not only was not interested in the Stockholm meeting but that Premier Kerensky himself hoped the conference would not be held.

A GERMAN VIEW OF IT.

London, Aug. 13.—Commenting on the decision of the British labor conference to send delegates to the socialist meeting at Stockholm, "Vorwaerts," the social organ in Berlin, says, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company:

"We hope when the delegates arrive that they will understand their mission in a different spirit from that indicated by Henderson. They must understand that it is impossible for them to preach a continuation of the war by giving German minority socialists additional evidence against the German government. One single discussion with the Germans will show the English how naive they are. This is an advantage we hope for in the coming discussion. Therefore we rejoice in this step forward. It cannot remain the only step."

QUIET ON WEST FRONT.

BRITISH CHANGE NOTHING.

Amsterdam, Aug. 13—The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger says the decision of the British labor party will not alter anything regarding the hopes attached to the Stockholm conference in view of the changes which have taken place in Russia. The paper does not believe much good will come from the program of the labor party and considers the attitude of the American government more logical in refusing passports to the American delegates.

BARS DOWN TO MATRIMONY.

Berlin, via London, Aug. 13.—The municipal food bureau of Strassburg announces that newly married couples will be entitled to draw double the amount of food indicated on their food cards. This privilege is accorded them for a period of six weeks.

THE FRENCH SOCIALISTS.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The decision of the permanent administrative committee of the French socialist party that French socialist delegates shall go to the international conference at Stockholm, as announced yesterday, places Albert Thomas, minister of munitions and socialist leader, in a delicate position similar to that of Arthur Henderson, British labor leader who resigned as minister without portfolio on Saturday, inasmuch as there is a conflict between the decision of M. Thomas' party and the expressed intentions of the government of which he is a member. In a long speech to his constituents at Champigny, M. Thomas endorsed and explained the decision of the party's committee. He asserted it could not be said the socialists would go to Stockholm to promote a peace based upon compromise, but that they would endeavor to fix before the world responsibility for the war and to affirm what the allies consider to be just and right.

The general opinion expressed in the press is that nothing will come of the meeting of socialists. The Figaro remarks that the committee's program is debatable, but that it is impossible not to recognize the patriotic intentions which inspire it. The result, it says, seems to be to make an impossibility any discussion with Philipp Scheidemann and the German socialists associated with him in which regard it is satisfactory.

NOT READY FOR DISCUSSION.

Berlin, Aug. 13.—Chancellor Michaelis told a newspaper interviewer at Mannheim, Saturday, that the question of government monopoly of raw products for the reconstruction period after the war was not yet ripe for discussion. Strengthening of the nation's economic resources was an implicit need for the future, the chancellor added, especially in the face of threatened trade blockades by enemies.

GERMANS REPULSED.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The Germans attack last night on the Aisne front in an effort to recapture trenches taken by the French on Saturday. Today's official statement says they were repulsed with losses.

The announcement follows:

"Between Cerny and Craonne the enemy's artillery developed pronounced activity, especially in the sector south of Ailles. The Germans attacked in vain at the point at which we captured trenches on Aug. 11. They were repulsed with losses and obtained no result.

"In the Champagne east of Rheims, in the regions of the Casque and the Teton, and on the left bank of the Meuse there were spirited artillery actions. Two surprise attacks by the enemy at Caurieres wood and Bezonvaux were repulsed by our fire. Elsewhere the night was calm.

"Two German airplanes and a captive balloon were brought down yesterday by our pilots. Three other enemy machines were forced to land, having been severely damaged.

SUSPENDED AS NON-NEUTRAL.

Amsterdam, Aug. 13.—The Endhoeven Dagblad has been suspended for a week by the general commanding the Dutch province of North Brandt for publishing July 30 an anti-German article about the sinking of Dutch fish steamers. The general in a letter says: "In view of the strict neutrality of Holland, I consider it unpermissable to apply to one of the belligerents such an epithet as was used."

WAR CROSSES FOR FISHERMEN.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The crews of the fishing smacks of Larochelle who cast their nets July 2 to give battle to a submarine, which they compelled to retreat, have been rewarded by the ministry of marine. War crosses have been given to the captains and also an engineer and quartermaster, who continued to fight after they had been wounded.

AMERICANS LOSE LIVES

The dispatches say four of the Americans were missionaries and names Mr. and Mrs. Naygard, Miss Robinson and Carolyn Thompson.

A Mr. Pointer was saved. Nineteen other missionaries of an organization with headquarters at 356 Bridge street, Brooklyn, N. Y., were saved.

The fifth American who was lost was a Mr. Sumner, address not given. In addition to these five an Englishman named Duckworth, with his American wife and six children, also lost their lives.

Mrs. Duckworth's father lives in Denver, Col. His name has not been ascertained. Among the saved were Mr. Somer and wife, apparently from Meadows, Ill.; Mr. Richey, No. 4616 Evans avenue, Chicago; Mr. Pritchet, No. 1426 Rockland street, Philadelphia; David Lovas, South Dakota; X. F. Braaten, Minneapolis; Mr. Denham, an Australian with an American wife and two children, and a Mrs. Smith, no address given.

MEMBERS OF MISSION.

New York, Aug. 13.—The party of nineteen missionaries who were on boar dthe steamer Athens, sunk by a mine near Cape Town, were members of the African inland mission, which is interdenominational. In addition to the nineteen two children of Rev. and Mrs. Earl L. Camp, members of the party, were aboard the vessel. Charles E. Hurlburd, general director of the organization here said that no word had been received as to the fate of the children. The City of Athens sailed from this port July 12. Miss Helen Robinson, the missionary drowned on the vessel, was the daughter of Bishop C. Robinson of the Methodist missions board in Indiana. Miss Robinson had been in the United States about one year attending an educational institute.

JOY-RIDING UNDER BAN

perplexing problems now before the war-making authorities. In order that the war may be carried on successfully the army and navy will have to have immediately on hand enough gasoline for the aeroplanes, truck automobiles ,tractors and other machines. There must be no dilly-dallying about this supply of gasoline and there won't be.

Up to the Joy Rider.

"Is is estimated that the army and navy will need for the year 350,000,000 gallons, and there are two ways of obtaining it. In the first place the joy rider whose pleasure is obtained by covering many miles at high speed can voluntarily give this up; the man who takes his family on Sunday for a fifty-mile ride or more can cut this. Every man who drives a machine daily can ask himself if part of his riding cannot be obviated.

"To sum up every automobile owner and driver can be taught to ask himself each morning whether or not his proposed trip is absolutely necessary and act accordingly.

"If the people continue to be thoughtless and unwilling to do their patriot bit in this respect, it may be necessary for the government to take drastic action which will stop excess pleasure use of all automobiles. This is not yet contemplated, so I understand, but it is the only alternative for the refusal of the automobile owners to co-operate and make the necessary voluntary sacrifice.

Half Used For Pleasure.

"It is generally estimated and conceded that one-half of the gasoline used in the United States (one billion, two hundred and fifty million gallons) is used in pleasure riding in my opinion, a judicious use of the automobile for this purpose will cut this amount of gasoline in half, which would mean the saving of more than a million gallons each day in the year."

Director Manning gives a number of suggestions as to how savings in gasoline may be effected and concludes with the statement that his warning does not mean that automobile owners should lay up their cars nor that any one should change his mind about purchasing a car.

GRAIN PITS IGNORE FEDERAL CONTROL

Report of Government Action as Probable Has Little Effect.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 13.—Announcement in general terms of the government plans to rule the wheat and flour business of the country made no important difference in the wheat market today. Prices showed a slightly increased tendency to ease off, but a downward slant of late has been the plain course of prices.

After opening 1c lower at $2.14, September, the market recovered to $2.15. No other option but September was dealt in to any great extent whatever.

Falling off in demand for corn for immediately delivery, especially to distillers, continued to weaken the corn market. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼c to 1c lower with December at $1.14 to $1.14½ and May at $1.11¼ to $1.11½ were followed by a moderate rally and then a fresh setback.

Oats gave way with corn.

New high price records in the hog market strengthened provisions.

NEW RECORDS FOR FEW STOCK ISSUES

Wall Street Trading Shows Higher Bent and Some Firmness.

New York, Aug. 13.—Tobaccos, motor shippings and a few equipments were appreciably higher at the active opening of today's market, some of the first named issues establishing new records.

The more prominent industrials, including steels, were irregular but developed general firmness later.

Aside from slight additional gains in the motors and specialties no changes of more than fractional limits occurred among the leaders during the balance of the forenoon. Dealings were restricted by the uncertain money market.

Liberty bonds were firmer at 99.00 to 99.12.

OATS MARKET DROPS TO LOWEST FIGURE

Weakness Also Noted in Corn Market—New Oats Has Not Yet Appeared.

Monday's markets were characterized by the weakness in oats, the price dropping to 62 cents per bushel, the lowest mark that has been reached on the local markets. Only two loads were weighted at the city scales, selling for 62 and 65 cents per bushel. The new oats has not yet put in an appearance on the local markets, but is expected very soon.

Corn also took a slight drop Monday morning, selling for an even $2 at the city scales. Only one load was weighed. Eight loads of new hay sold for $12 per ton, a drop of 50 cents per ton from the market of Saturday. The old hay market remained firm, one load being weighed at $15 per ton.

Potatoes were quoted at a slightly higher mark Monday morning, retailers quoting a price of 35 and 40 cents per peck. Eggs were retailing at 35 and 37 cents per dozen.

COUNCIL OF CITIZENS TO ADVISE COMMITTEE

Y. M. C. A. Building Project Will Be Discussed at Public Meeting Tonight.

Believing that the advice of the citizens should be sought in the matter, the Y. M. C. A. building committee has called a meeting of all citizens interested in the new Y. M. C. A. building, the meeting to be held at the Commercial club at 7:30 o'clock. The committee has found that the cost of erecting the building will be much higher than was at first anticipated, and it is for that reason that the advice of citizens is to be asked before proceeding further. All who are interested in the matter are urged to attend this meeting. No funds will be solicited at that time.

Members of the committee will be present to explain the situation and C. R. Weatherhogg, of this city, and Architect Shattuck, of Chicago, will give their advice and lay before the committee the problems which have arisen. A. H. Perfect is chairman of the building committee.

Peculiar situations confront the building committee. At the time when the funds were subscribed they were ample to complete the structure, but since that time there has been such an advance in the cost of building material that the funds are not now adequate. Many features of the building cannot and, in the belief of the committee, should not be elliminated to reduce the cost.

EXHIBIT CAR A SUCCESS.

The Oklahoma exhibit car, located at Calhoun St. and Nickel Plate tracks, is doing a fine business. On Saturday the car was crowded with buyers and prospective buyers of these productive government land, and Mr. Wallace, the manager in charge, reports an excellent business since the first day the car was here, many purchasers paying cash down and not taking advantage of the payment plan. KAISER'S ORGAN GIVES THE LIE TO GERARD

Insists William Did Not Tell President Violation of Belgium Was Strategical Necessity.

OTHER GERMAN PAPERS ADMIT TRUTH

Berlin, Aug. 13.—The semi-official Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung denies the existence of the telegram alleged by James W. Gerard, the former American ambassador to Berlin, as having been sent by Emperor William to President Wilson in August, 1914, when the German emperor is quoted as having asserted that Belgium's neutrality "had to be violated by Germany on strategical grounds."

The alleged telegram which has reached Berlin by way of Switzerland, has the emperor saying that King George sent him word through the emperor's brother, Prince Henry, that Great Britain would remain neutral if war broke out on the continent involving Germany, France and Austria and Russia. The Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says:

"We are in a position to declare that no such telegram from the emperor exists. It is true that Mr. Gerard was given an audience on Aug. 10, 1914, in order to give him an opportunity of placing President Wilson's offer of mediation before the emperor.

"The president's personal message to the emperor reads as from the official head of one of the powers which signed The Hague convention and said: 'I feel it to be my right and my duty in accordance with article III of the convention to declare to you in a spirit of truest friendship that I would welcome any opportunity to act for European peace whether now or at any other time that might be better fitted to render you and all concerned services which would give me satisfaction and joy.'

"This proposal was made at the time when the armies of both sides had already crossed the frontier and when it seemed out of the question to call a halt to events. The emperor could therefore, only have his thanks conveyed to President Wilson for his offer and thereby remark that while the present moment was too early for mediation by the neutral powers, the president's friendly proposal might later be returned.

"The emperor then conversed for some time further with Mr. Gerard and explained to him the events that led up to the outbreak of the war. The emperor particularly pointed out the ambiguous and disloyal attitude of Great Britain, which had destroyed all hope of a peaceful agreement.

WHEAT AND FLOUR FIRST TO BE HIT

Executive Orders to Put Law Into Effect to Come Soon.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Creation of a grain control board within the food administration to supervise distribution of wheat and manufacture and sale of flour will be added within a few days. To the board will be delegated authority to carry out regulations governing wheat and flour announced by the food administration. President Wilson will issue a series of executive orders giving the food administration powers conferred on the executive under the food control bill.

The first will deal with wheat and flour and will direct the food administration to proceed September 1 with the enforcement of the regulations announced last night. Wheat and flour are taken up first, it was said today at the food administration, because the wheat crop is beginning to move, mak-

Goodrich Soon to Confer With Floor Leaders of Both Houses.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 13.—Work on the preparation for the call expected to be issued by Gov. Goodrich for a special session of the Indiana legislature proceeded rapidly today. The governor was said to be arranging to call a conference in the near future with the lieutenant governor, floor leaders of both houses and others who will deal with bills to be brought forth at the special sessiono. THREE TIMES IN THE CHAIR

For Five Years Henry P. Scherer Was Head of City Government.

WAS PROMINENT AS A BAND MUSICIAN

Elected Trustee of Wayne Township in 1914 and Was Removed.

Henry P. Scherer, age 63 years, three times mayor of Fort Wayne, ex-councilman, ex-township trustee and a veteran bandsman, died at his home, 1331 Maumee avenue, Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Death was due from heart disease, from which Mr. Scherer had been a sufferer for many years.

The deceased was born in Fort Wayne, September 1, 1854, and had lived in this city all his life with the exception of a short time spent in the west. He was elected to the city council in May, 1891. He was sitting in the council at the time of the death of Mayor C. A. Zollinger in 1894, and was elected by the council at that time as acting mayor. He served in that capacity until the following May.

In 1896 he was nominated for mayor on the democratic ticket and was elected. He was re-nominated and re-elected in 1898 for a term of two years. During his administration, the term of mayor was extended to three years, and he filled that office until 1901. In that year he retired from active politi-

PLAN LOOTING OF JERUSALEM

Turks, Desperate in Surety of Doom, Pursue Policy of Extinction.

HOLY CITY MAY BE SCENE OF HORRORS

Only Hope is in British Expedition Hammering at Gates of Palestine.

Cairo, Egypt, Friday, July 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The situation in Palestine this summer is the most serious since the war began. A scheme for the looting of Jerusalem is already being executed and throughout the country the Turk has embarked on a calculated policy of plundering and killing the native inhabitants, so that if they are forced to vacate the country they will leave behind them a desert. The only thing that can save them, the only hope that buoys them up, is that the British armies now hammering at the gates of the holy land may soon drive out the Turks.

Conditions Are Described.

Information about conditions in Palestine reaches here from many sources, some more or less direct, but most of them rather roundabout. The following statement of the present situation is given to the Associated Press by an official in touch with all the sources:

"The attitude of the young Turks toward the unfortunate non-Turkish races within their empire has always been harsh and oppressive. During the war it has been an open campaign of robbery, expolitation and massacre for the young Turks, realizing that the partition of the lands under their rule is unavoidable, have determined to get as much as they can out of the inhabitants while they are in possession.

"The stupendous wickedness of the extermination of the Armenian nation cannot be dismissed as a mere device of oriental statecraft or as a particular measure aimed at a particular race for it is the Turkish policy toward not only Ar-

HAVE HANDBOOK OF FRENCH FOR THE ARMY'S USE

New York, Aug. 13.—The first edition of 100,000 copies of an "English-French Handbook," which will be supplied to the soldiers going to France, was sent to the war department today by the National Security league.

The book, which is of pocket size with a water-proof cover, contains sixty-four pages devoted to practical questions the soldier will probably want to ask in French.

The book is sponsered by a committee headed by Cecil C. Blumenthal, through whose generosity it is being issued. Before publication the copy of the book was submitted to Secretary Baker and referred by him to the war college.

San Francisco, Aug. 13.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus, of Standford university, treasurer of the People's Council of America, and peace advocate, will not be a delegate to the peace council to be held in Stockholm September 9, according to a telegram received here today.

Dr. Jordan said that even if the government should alter its decision to refuse passports to delegates to the council, he would not act for any of the peace organizations.

THIRTY PER CENT FAIL TO PASS

Those Who Perjure Themselves in Affidavits Will Get No Consideration.

A perceptible decrease in the number of exemptions asked was observed Monday in the examination of men for the selective service army conducted by the boards in the second and third districts. These two boards began the work of examining the men who were called in after it was discovered that the quota would not be obtained from the first number.

Practically 30 per cent of the men who were examined Monday, however, were rejected on account of physicial disability. In district 2 more men waived exemption of those who passed than those who claimed exemption.

The boards announce that if it is discovered that a man who files claim for exemption perjures himself in any way he will not be given any further consideration but will immediately be found able to serve in the selective army.

In district 1 the board announces that no definite information on the exemption claims will be imparted until after Aug. 17, the last day on which to file proof for the claim for exemption.

This board, however, states that thus far 76 men have waived exemption, 12 have been refused exemption and 32 men have failed to appear. It is their belief that the quota of 121 men can be secured without calling in any more men.

Buttons Arrive.

Members of the conscription boards have received a shipment of buttons to be given those who are exempt from service. The buttons are bronze and bear the inscription, "Exempt U. S." The buttons are the size of a penny, and none will be given out until the claim for exemption has been fully substantiated.

Some Claims Rejected.

MR. TAFT GAINS RAPIDLY AND IS UP IN HIS BED

Clay Center, Kas., Aug. 13.—Continued improvement was shown today in the condition of former President William H. Taft, who was taken ill here with intestinal indigestion a week ago tonight. Mr. Taft now has commenced to eat regularly, although in small quantities, after several days of enforced fasting and yesterday he sat up in his bed for the first time since the attack. Dr. F. B. Morgan, in attendance, said however, it probably would be two or three days before Mr. Taft would be able to walk.

JOY-RIDING UNDER BAN

Government Needs Gasoline for War and May Take Over the Supply.

Immense Amount of Fuel Needed for War Trucks Urges Conservation.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Warning of the possibility of drastic action by the federal government to stop excessive pleasure use of automobiles during the war, in order that the gasoline needs of the United States and its allies may be met, is given in a statement issued by Director Van H. Manning, of the bureau of mines, today in which he asks the co-operation of automobile owners in stopping the practice.

Enough gasoline to care for the requirements of America and perhaps that of her allies would be saved, in the opinion of Mr. Manning, "if automobile owners of the country would stop unnecessary and extravagant pleasure riding and if owners and dealers handle this fuel in a careful and economical manner.

BRITISH PACIFIST TO TELL COMMONS

Henderson Will Be Given a Ventilation by the Premier.

London, Aug. 13.—A statement by Arthur Henderson, the labor leader and minister without portfolio in the British war council, who resigned Saturday, was expected to be made this afternoon in parliament and it was assumed that Premier Lloyd-George would reply immediately.

It was reported that Mr. Henderson would demand the production of all communications between the British and Russian governments with reference to the Stockholm conference with a view to showing that the premier put a wrong interpretation on the Russian telegram he quoted in a letter to Mr. Henderson.

If the house of commons indorses the demand a secret session is likely to be held for the communication of certain documents reference being made in morning newspapers to a telegram which it is said M. Kerensky, the Russian premier, sent to Albert Thomas, first minister of ENTIRE WHEAT CROP WILL BE TAKEN BY U. S.

Washington, Aug. 13.—The government will take over this year's entire wheat crop, if necessary, in order to conserve the supply for America's fighting forces and the allies and reduce costs to the consumers of this country, according to an announcement of Herbert C. Hoover, regarding the policies of the food administration for the control of wheat, flour and bread. The chief features of the program include the elimination of trading in futures, the establishment of buying agencies at the principal terminals, the licensing of elevators and mills, regulation of exchanges and the fixing of fair prices.

Although the minimum price of $2 wheat fixed by congress does not become effective until next year, the administration plans to exercise complete control over this year's harvest through powers conferred on the food and export control law.

RAILROAD NEWS

TWO ELECTRICIANS GIVEN PROMOTIONS

Russ Harruff and George J. Ruck Advanced at General Electric Works.

The building of a new product and the transfer of the testing department of another product, together with the extension of the territory of General Foreman Raymond Hoffman, of the testing department of the General Electric works, has been followed by the promotion of two of the men in Mr. Hoffman's department. The new product will be the induction motor and the testing of work to be transferred is that on the alternating dynamos. These go to the first floor of the new building, No. 19, on the south side of Wall street, where Russ C. Harruff will have charge, while Mr. Hoffman has general supervision. The position of assistant general foreman in the testing department in building 17, which was filled by Mr. Harruff for the past year, has been filled by the promotion of George J. Ruck, an inspector in the department. Mr. Harruff has been at the General Electric works about seven years, commencing as a student. For the past six years he has been tester and later assistant foreman of the department. Mr. Ruck has been employed at the works twelve years, the last five years in the testing department, where he was a tester until several months ago when he was transferred to office work in Mr. Hoffman's department. Another change which is a promotion for the young man affected is the transfer from the testing floor to the office of Herbert Krock. This became effective this morning also. Mr. Krock has been employed at the works two or three years. He was formerly employed at the Pennsylvania freight office.

BARTENDERS HAVE BIG CROWD.

Fifteen Hundred People Enjoyed the Outing Yesterday.

It is estimated that over 1,500 members and guests attended the annual picnic of Bartenders' Union No. 305, at Fitzgerald grove, yesterday. Included in the guests were several people from Garrett, Lima, Huntington and Peru. The picnic was an all day affair, but the bulk of the attendance was in the afternoon only, when the scene in the large grove was a decidedly active and happy one. There were two meals, breakfast from 9 to 11 o'clock and dinner pretty much all afternoon. Chicken, cooked in the most appetizing manner, was one of the chief numbers on the menu card and it was in great demand. A band concert, boxing matches, baseball and other athletic events were the amusement features.

CROSSING FATALITY.

Samuel Watt Is Instantly Killed at Lafayette.

Samuel Watt, sr., aged 65 years and residing near Lafayette, O., was instantly killed at that place at 3:25 o'clock Saturday afternoon when the vehicle on which he was riding was struck on High street by the engine pulling Pennsylvania train No. 19. One of the horses driven by Mr. Watt was injured so badly that it was shot soon after the accident, there being no chance for its recovery. The only damage to the train was the breaking of the pilot of the engine. The train was in charge of Conductor J. A. Phipps and Engineer H. E. Wagner.

BRAKEMAN HAS ARM BROKEN.

BECOMES ARMY ENGINEER STUDENT.

This morning's mail brought to H. M. Large, master carpenter of the Grand Rapids and Indiana road, a letter from his son, William M. Large, conveying the intelligence that he had entered the army school of technical engineers, at Fortress Monroe, Va., where he will be given three months' training in the electrical department before being assigned to special duties. Last April he received an appointment to the first officers' training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, but fracturing his wrist two weeks before the opening of the camp, he was discharged from duty. July 1, he became a special apprentice in the service of the Doherty Utilities company, of Denver, who have given him a furlough for the term of the war.

TWELVE HURT IN TRACTION WRECK

Going Forty Miles an Hour Winona Flyer Strikes an Open Switch.

Noblesville, Ind., Aug. 13.—Speeding forty miles an hour, the Winona Flyer, on the Union Traction company line, due here at 11:06 o'clock, Sunday ran into an open switch a half mile north of Noblesville and was ditched. Twelve persons were injured, but no one was killed. The fact that the car did not turn over probably prevented fatalities.

The injured are:

EARL MYERS, Windfall; left foot cut off just above the ankle, right leg badly mashed and may have to be amputated.

WILLIAM GRIFFIN, motorman, 712 East Pratt street, Indianapolis; face cut into shreds by flying glass in vestibule; not serious.

MRS. LUCY W. GARDNER, Bloomington, Ind., wife of Maj. Fletcher Gardner, of Fort Benjamin Harrison; head cut, hip bruised and believed to be injured internally.

HARVEY STROUD, Elwood, deaf mute; head cut, arm crushed and hurt on hand.

JESSE G. PORTER, Tipton; right arm broken between elbow and shoulder.

F. G. HILMAN, Elwood, sergeant, Troop B; severely sprained knee.

MRS. N. W. BROWN, Tipton; right leg badly crushed, suffering severely from shock.

MRS. LUCY HARDY, Tipton; right leg severely sprained.

H. F. BOCKWEG, Noblesville; left arm sprained and foot injured.

DR. C. H. TOMLINSON, Cicero; cuts on neck and severely bruised; not serious.

MRS. SARAH WERLROFF, Elkhart; bruised about chest.

W. ALLEN WOOD, Atlanta, Ga.; severely bruised; not serious.

Brakes Quickly Applied.

The car was in charge of Conductor Henry Brlles, 3709 Central avenue, Indianapolis, and Motorman William Griffin, 712 Pratt street, Indianapolis. They were rounding a bend, and the switch was about 200 yards away when Griffin saw the danger. He immediately applied the airbrakes and the sudden jerk threw many passengers out of their seats, but was able to check the speed materially before the car struck the switch.

It left the main track and both front and rear trucks were knocked from beneath it, landing the car on the ground.

Motorman Griffin was thrown through a window in the vestibule. Myers was standing on the rear platform. He was thrown off and pinned under a heavy beam.

RAISING THE TAX LEVY.

To meet the demands of the municipal budget for next year Comptroller W. C. Baade has been compelled to recommend an increase of 13 cents in the city tax rate. If the council does not care to take the responsibility of raising the rate it will have to accept the alternative and cut the budget to the revenues produced by the present rate.

Fort Wayne's insufficiency of revenues is not a new condition. It has been a persistent condition for many years. The rate should have been increased long ago to something like that the comptroller now recommends. For a decade or more public improvements under municipal auspices have been held back by the failure of revenues to meet the increasing necessities of the city. Now, with the cost of everything determined by war prices and still mounting, there must be either a higher rate of taxation or less municipal activity in the matter of material improvements.

Fort Wayne cannot go forward with even the usual program of betterments and maintain the same scale of expenditures in administration without getting more money. There will have to be vast retrenchment if the old rate is to be continued. On top of the increased rate is to be continued. On top of the increased cost of maintaining the government there comes to an end within less than a year the source of some fifty thousand dollars of revenues hitherto derived from city liquor licenses. That must somehow be made up or to that extent expenditures will have to be cut down. Both the police and fire departments are demanding large increases of pay and it cannot be denied that, in view of the increased cost of living, the demand has justice. In both departments the younger men will be drawn into other avenues of employment by the much better pay than they can now command unless the rates of pay in the city service are given some general correspondence with the average wage levels in other pursuits. The places of those who may quit city employment are likely to be difficult if not impossible to fill, for men young enough and capable enough will not be attracted to seek such employment while it pays much less than they can command in other lines of work.

Much can be done to cut down municipal expense. Improvement programs can be narrowed and street-cleaning, sewer-maintenance and garbage-collection and other municipal functions can be curtailed, but they ought not to be for these municipal operations are and always have been underdone. Administrative salaries offer another field for retrenchment through which some saving could be effected, but it is doubtful if such an expedient will be seriously considered.

The council is bound by a foolish campaign pledge not to increase the tax-rate during its tenure. It may feel irrevocably bound by this promise—and the more likely so since it has but a few months to remain in office and because a municipal campaign is pending. But there is not any escape from choice of one of two courses. Either the tax-rate must go up or expenditures must come down. Not soon enough to avail next year, but embracing possibilties of early and great relief in time immediately ahead a just revision of tax valuations will put the city in the way of augmenting its revenues greatly. That ought to be done at the earliest possible day and when it is done the city will be placed in better status to meet its financial problems than it has been within the memory of anyone living.

Meanwhile, the question of raising the tax-rate is immediate and pressing. It is acute at a period that is the worst in the city's history for increasing tax burdens. The soaring cost of everything, the imposition of war taxes and the certain prospect that taxation for war purposes by the federal government has only begun, all act together to make the problem of increasing the municipal revenues a grave matter, indeed.

The city must consider not only its own needs but the general situation in respect of the public's ability to stand local tax increases. Whether or not this is the time to add to the burden is the question, which is matched by the doubt that must rise as to the wisdom of slowing up in municipal progress.

HENRY M. WILLIAMS.

Fort Wayne has lost by the death of Henry M. Williams a citizen of fine spirit. He was a man of high civic ideals and he cherished to the last an intense interest in all that pertained to the welfare of this community which was his natal place and for three-quarters of a century his residence. He had faith in Fort Wayne—faith so strong that his belief in Fort Wayne's future got him looked upon by many of less vision as a mere enthusiastic dreamer. But some of those who once scoffed at him are living to see his faith justified and his dreams come true. He never doubted that a great future lay ahead of his city.

A good many years ago he was perhaps the first of Fort Wayne's men to foresee the development of electric interurban railways and the coming of a time when this city would be the plexus of a great system of these carriers. All that he previsioned has not arrived, but there has been a great development and the rest of it will come, even to those favorite projects of his own that many practical men agree have offered the best fields for development of electric transportation.

For years Mr. Williams made the public water supply of Fort Wayne his special and almost personal and private concern. He was an inveterate foe of every proposal and scheme to abandon the city's wells as source of supply and it was well-known that he stood ready to make a legal battle with his own resources against any attempt to give up the water system as it was and as it has remained. In the chamber of the city council is a banner bearing this inscription:

"National Patriotism; Civic Patriotism. Hold the Fort Against All Schemes for Private Gain."

That banner was presented to the city council almost a quarter of a century ago by Mr. Williams. It sententiously expresses the ideals for which he stood. He was devoted to his country and proved his devotion by years of service in the civil war and carries to his grave the scars of battle. He was devoted to his city with the same spirit and he proved that in many ways and would have proved it in still more and greater ways, as he sought to do, but encountered stupid and short-sighted obstructions, the folly of which are today seen and appreciated.

Mr. Williams took a lively and frequently an aggressive part in public discussions and was a frequent contributor to the local press upon topics of current importance. Editors of Fort Wayne will long recall him as a rare instance of a speaker to the public through the newspaper columns who did not believe unlimited space was his by due and title without question and without price. He rarely claimed space, no matter how little of it, that he did not enclose with his communication some honorarium "to pay," as he habitually expressed it, "for the type-setting." A time will come, we believe, when many of the things he made the object of both his prophecies and his labors, will come about. He could see far ahead. In his passing Fort Wayne sustains the loss of a sturdy and progressive citizen who stood for what was best in public conduct and achievement.

Interest in the Boys' National Reserve is growing and the volunteers for registration and enlistment are increasing. This branch of the national defense is going to become a tower of strength to the country and its government and long after the war is over the good effects of this present organization of the youth too young for arms will be visible and effective in the life of America. The ideal of service will be impressed upon these youngsters in a way they will not only understand but in a way that will arouse their pride in serving and having served. The mobilization of the whole nation for war could not be but for the enlistment of these young men for work in such channels as they can be made most useful. Besides the fine spirit of loyalty and service that will become militant in these young bosoms, there will come vast material gains to the government and nation by reason of their labors. It is a splendid movement and it not only cannot fail, but will exceed both in volume and enthusiasm all that was expected of it.

The plan to have congress take the stump throughout the nation to preach the righteousness of America's part in the war and to solidify and stir up the spirit of the country is one fine little idea. It should be pressed from now until the regular session begins in December. Quite a wonder the ingenuity of this scheme did not disclose itself long ago. Just the thing to promote regular and diligent labor in the capitol and to discourage talk. A few weeks on the stump ought to give the Jabberwock statesmen a regular field day of oratory and bring them back to the workbench content to labor and keep silence. Of course it will fail in some aggravated cases. LaFollette and Reed and Stone and Vardaman won't go out and talk war and the can't go out and talk anything else. But silence in those quarters will help a deal.

AUSTRIA READY TO SEEK PEACE; HAPSBURGS FEAR A REVOLT IN THE LAND

BY HARRY B. HUNT.

The next move for peace, according to Washington officials in touch with the inside maneuvers of the central powers, is to be made by Austria, with that country appearing in the role of mediator between Germany and the allies.

So far as Austria is concerned, this peace movement will be in good faith. She is tired of the war and would welcome its end. For months she has held in line only because she dared not break with Germany. She sees now that, even in event of victory, Germany and not Austria, would benefit principally by the terms of settlement, and German domination would be tightened over Austria as well as over Germany's enemies.

The moving factor in Austria's peace proposals, however, is her own internal situation.

Economically, Germany is far better off than Austria. Crops have been poor, reserves of food are low, and war taxes have ground the mass of the Austro-Hungarian people down to absolute want.

Austria's people, a mixture of a score of different tribes and nationalities, have never been welded together into the solid union effected by Germany. Their national spirit is less developed, their tribal tendencies more pronounced. Unrest and dissatisfaction has grown with the burdens of the war until it is now reaching the danger point.

Recognizing this condition, the men at the head of Austria's war councils dread another winter at war. Cold and hunger and suffering not only for the army but for the mass of the civil population is certain if the war outlasts the next four months. Will the people stand it, or will they revolt?

That is the big question and the question the house of Hapsburg most fears. Peace, or peace negotiations that would drag through the winter months, alone promise security against a civil uprising.

As understood here, Austria is attempting to win Germany's consent to undertake peace negotiations early this fall. Germany, still confident of her ability to maintain a stalemate on land and to make headway at sea, will consent to peace negotiations on terms that would make the war practically a draw.

But a draw for Germany means defeat for the allies. For it means the German military menace will remain, and the peace so reached would be but a breathing spell before another war.

For this reason the United States and her allies cannot consent to undertake peace negotiations until they clearly have the upper hand militarily. There can be no peace without victory that will "make the world safe for democracy." The only peace that will be effective will be one resulting from the smashing of Germany's forces in the field, not from the fine phrases of diplomats around a council table.

There will be a lot of talk about "peace by negotiation" through these next few months.

That's Germany's game. Unable to win by force of arms, she now hopes to save her face by plausible talk—then suddenly knife us in the back when we think we have secured peace.

The sooner the American people understand this and turn deaf ears to all this talk of a compromise peace, the sooner we will be able really to win this war and have a real peace.

WAR NO EXCUSE FOR SUSPENSION OF THE LAWS FOR CHILDREN

BY FREDERICK M. KERBY.

"It would be better to lose the war than sacrifice the children to it."

"The very last resource we should consider yielding is the nation's most important asset—its children."

In these two sentences Julia Lathrop, head of the children's bureau of the United States department of labor, answered the question, "Should the United States suspend during the war the child labor and compulsory school attendance laws in the states so children can 'do their bit' in the nation's factories and farms??

"If this war can end war and make democracy safe it will be worth great sacrifices," said Miss Lathrop, speaking slowly and emphatically. "But," she continued, "it will not be worth sacrificing the children."

"The ultimate treasure and resource of any people it its young life—the only surety of the continuance of the race. Is not our fundamental necessity therefore to safeguard that reservoir? What good will democracy be if there is no race left worth while to exercise it?

"Thirty million children are in our care under 16 years of age; about 20,000,000 of them in our schools. Slowly we have arrived at certain measures of protection for them—by state compulsory education laws, child labor laws, mother's pension laws, and now at last by a national child labor law.

"Shall we abandon these standards in the interest of increased production for war needs? It is important we face squarely the risk before us and determine whether the schooling and work of children is a necessity or a luxury.

"At the beginning of the war, England and France relaxed the regulations governing school attendance and protection of child workers. They found it did not pay. Munitions output, stimulated at first, began to fall off. The British munition workers committee urged the restoration of former restrictions.

"This year, notwithstanding the increasing exhaustion of the war, England and France have taken determined measures to restore or improve their old standards.

"The British board of education has demanded a budget for 1917-1918 of nearly 4,000,000 pounds more than last year's.

"This heroic struggle to protect the children in countries so desperately involved in war as are France and England is in strange contrast to the suggestion that the federal child labor law be suspended or repealed.

"It is more important than ever to protect the children."

LIBERTY BONDS IN MARKET.

(New York World.)

The government's 3½ per cent Liberty bonds are now being traded in on the stock exchange at quotations slightly under 100. They fell below par when a report was circulated that the government would again be in the market by Sept. 15 with another great issue of $2,000,000,000 or more at the same rate. That report had no official basis, but it persists.

What these speculative people do with their bonds is of no particular concern to the great mass of the more than 4,000,000 people who subscribed for the issue. Their security is as absolute as it ever was. But it is of some concern to the government in floating further issues that this same great mass of the people who took bonds on small installment payments shall not have had time to pay up a third of the price before there is another summons in patriotism to buy more.

TEUTONIC CONDESCENSION.

In a pamphlet published twenty years ago by the Pan-German league, we find the prophecy that by the year 1950 "the Germans will have the consciousness of being a race of masters. Nevertheless, they will so far condescend that the less important work shall be done by the foreigners under their domination."

They have "so far condescended" with regard to the Belgians, Serbs, Poles, Roumanians and inhabitants of northern France. We are now engaged in the work of making sure that their condescension shall never reach as far as the United States of America."

Uncle Harry Explains Draft and Exemption

As Uncle Harry came from his office late in the afternoon his attention was attracted by the sound of fife and drum and he halted while a company of boys marched by.

They were commanded by a veteran of the Spanish-American war whom Uncle Harry knew and as they exchanged military salutes Uncle Harry caught sight of Joe and Jimmy in the ranks. Military discipline did not allow them to speak to him, nor he to them, but he was much gratified to see their military bearing and their great interest in their work. After the company passed, Uncle Harry smiled and said:

"Good boys, that's the stuff of which American patriots are made."

And when, after supper, he went around to the boys' home they were there, all cleaned up and ready for the evening talk.

"Well, boys, I saw you this afternoon," said Uncle Harry. "I didn't know you were soldiers. Why didn't you say something about it?"

"We saw you too, Uncle Harry," said Joe, "but we did not dare to speak to you. It would have been against orders."

"What about the company, boys?" said Uncle Harry. "Who organized it and who drills you?"

"Joe Smith came over and spoke of it first. He said his uncle who was a captain in the Spanish war would drill us and then we would know something about it if the war lasted long enough for us to enlist.

"We call ourselves the First Home Guards and we drill every afternoon from 4 to 6.

"We are both privates, but Jimmy is working to become a corporal and I hope he'll get it," said Joe.

"Good for you, boys," said Uncle Harry. "You have the right spirit. Keep it up.

"But what shall be talk about this evening in our Current Events class?"

Joe spoke up. "I would like to know about the draft. How do they pick out the men to serve and who does it?"

"That's a very interesting question, Joe," said Uncle Harry, "and I will tell you about it. The president has ordered 687,000 men drafted. As many of these will be exempted for different reasons, there was about double that number drawn in order to allow for those who will be excused from service."

"How did they do it, Uncle Harry?" asked Helen. "Did they draw numbers in every state in the union and send the numbers on to the government in Washington?"

"No, Helen," said Uncle Harry. "The drawing was all done in Washington in this way: A great glass bowl was provided in which 10,500 black capsules, each containing a number was placed. A blindfolded man constantly stirred these capsules up and another blindfolded man took one at a time which he handed to two announcers who stood on each side of the bowl.

"These announcers broke the capsules as they took them out and called out the number to three tally clerks and the slip was then handed to another man who verified the report of the announcers. Then another person wrote the numbers plainly on a large blackboard in regular order. When this board was full it was taken out and another blackboard put in use. The first blackboard was photographed, cleaned off and returned and the two blackboards were continued in use alternately until the drawing was completed. The drawing took two days to complete."

"Yes, but just a moment, Uncle Harry," said Joe. "You said this glass bowl held 10,500 capsules and yet over one million men were to be drafted. How could they draft so many if they only had 10,500 numbers to draw?"

"That's a very fair question, Joe," said Uncle Harry, "and I'll answer it. The country is divided up into very many drafting districts. No district has a greater number than 10,500 and when a number was drawn it applied to every man bearing that number in any district in the entire country, no matter whether he lived in Pennsylvania, Florida or California. The first number drawn was 258 and by that act every man holding number 258 all through the United States was drafted. So you see by this ingenious labor-saving and absolutely fair method, time was saved and a great work performed.

"What men drew these numbers, Uncle Harry?" asked Joe.

"Well," said Uncle Harry, "in the start very prominent men officiated. It was an event of national importance and was started off with all dignity."

"Who drew the first number?" said Helen.

"Secretary of War Baker," said Uncle Harry.

"Was he blindfolded-" inquired Joe.

"Oh, yes," said Uncle Harry, "and so were all who followed him.

"Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate military committee, drew the second number; he was followed by a number of others.

"The result was awaited by people all over the country with great eagerness. After it was completed Mayor Smith, of Philadelphia, requested the secretary of war to donate the glass bowl to the city of Philadelphia to be deposited in Independence Hall. The bowl did not belong to the government, but the gentleman who did own it very willingly agreed to deposit it in that appropriate place, and so with the Liberty bell which rang out the good news of the birth of the nation, this glass bowl showing the patriotism of the people 141 years afterwards, will have a fitting place."

"Well, Uncle Harry," said Joe, "that certainly is interesting. But now tell us about the exemptions. Who are exempt and how are they exempted?"

"The boards of exemption," said Uncle Harry, "are appointed by the president in the different districts and act upon the reports of doctors and the claims made by the men who are drafted.

"Men who aren't strong enough for the work or who have lost teeth or fingers or who are lame or have weak hearts or lungs or are in any way unfit are naturally exempt after examination. Then those who have people solely dependent on them and those who are doing more valuable service for the government in their present service than they would as soldiers are exempt from active service."

"Well," said Joe, "I'd hate to be exempted if I was old enough to serve."

Uncle Harry smiled.

"If I was old enough to go," put in Jimmy, "I would volunteer."

Uncle Harry chuckled aloud.

"Good for you, boys," said he. "That's the right spirit. And I'll wager that when the time comes Helen, too, will be doing her bit. Won't you, my dear?"

"Yes, Uncle Harry. I will—somewhere," Helen answered quietly.

Editor's Note—Uncle Harry will be glad to answer inquiries, either in this column or by mail, provided letters are signed with the full name and address of the persons writing. The correspondents' names will not appear in the articles.

The Elmer Demoney ditch in Smith township, the total estimate of cost of construction of which is $4,325.80, was up for sale Saturday in the office of the county commissioners. Two bids were filed for the construction of the 8,768 lineal feet, Erastus Goodyear bidding $1,200 and George Wolfe $1,535.50. The St. John's German Lutheran church congregation and the St. Peter's congregation, both located in the Eberhard settlement southwest of the city, which were formerly united, until they split over differences thirty-seven years ago, may reunite. The pastor of the first named church was until recently Rev. W. A. F. Grimm. The pastor of the other church is Rev. H. G. Jungkuntz of this city, who also has charge of a pastorate here. The original church was a brick edifice, and following the split over differences, the St. Peter's congregation was formed and erected a white frame church in the same vicinity. In case the congregations reunite, Rev. H. G. Jungkuntz of this city, will probably have charge.

Spread the meat flavor over other foods and so economize on the quntity of meat consumed, says the United States department of agriculture. Here is one way to utilize left-over meat by spreading its flavor.

Meat Turnovers.

Chop the meat. If the quantity on hand is small, mix with it left-over potato or rice. Season with salt, pepper, onion, etc. Place filling on circular pieces of biscuit dough about the size of a saucer. Fold over the dough and crimp edges together. Bake for about one-half hour in a hot oven.

A brown sauce made from two tablespoonfuls of flour browned in two tablespoonfuls of butter to which a cupful of water or stock and a half teaspoonful of salt is added, may be served over the turnovers.

GEORGETTE DRAPING OVER SATIN SEEN IN LATE MODELS.

Ever so many of the latest models show tunic effects, georgette draping over satin, or satin over gorgetto. Even tricots, twills and gaberdines elaborate themselves with collars, cuffs and vestees of georgette, beige appearing on navy, gray on plum color, or cowslip on black. Georgette launders perfectly, and so has the advantage over taffeta and some of the uncertain satins.

Jersey suits trimmed with fur are among the excitements of early autumn displays. Jacket buttonholes, piped with color, contribute a touch of gayety and charm. Suit skirts in most cases are rather plain with shirred backs, and pockets are either the plain patch or the crescent. There is much plaiting to be seen and no flares.

Coat linings are joyous and inspiring, running to vivid shades and entirely fresh designs. Golds and yellow tones and all shades of blue are considered good, no matter what the color of the suit. For blue serges red linings are selected. Large splashy florette designs are printed on satins and oriental weirdnesses loom up on the new crepey stuffs.

TEN FLOWER BASKETS.

Ten flower baskets will be awarded to ten old ladies at the Congress at Robison Park on August 16.—Each old lady who registers in the pavilion will receive a duplicate numbered tag. Seven baskets were given last year, much to the old ladies' pleasure and delight. One of them drank coffee at a pavilion table after the theater exercises. The waiter suggested that she place the flower basket on the table while she ate; but the old lady refused to do so, lest her treasure disappear.

SINK DISINFECTANT.

For a disinfectant for a sink, pour down a gallon of boiling water mixed with two tablespoonfuls of soda and a teaspoonful of ammonia. This will dissolve all greasy matter in both sink and pipe.

TAKING OUT AN INK SPOT.

If ink is spilled on the tablecloth immediately melt a candle, taking some of the tallow, spread it over the ink patch and leave it to dry. Afterward was tablecotth and all traces of ink will have disappeared.

DID BIANCA DE SAULLES ROB THIS ACTRESS BEAUTY OF RICH HUSBAND?

RUTH SHEPLEY.

Ruth Shepley, actress now playing in San Francisco, was to wed Jack De Saulles within a few months, according to her friends. De Saulles and Miss Shepley had much in common—a knack for the outdoors, a love for horses and dogs, and a daring as automobile drivers. Her entry makes the case four-sided—Bianca. Joan Sawyer, Ruth Shepley and De Saulles. Miss Shepley protests De Saulles was "the most popular man on Broadway" only in the sense of his high character. She says he never danced, and hated cabarets.

AT THE PALACE

PRETTY BABY A HIT.

Jimmie Hodges and Jean Tynes Turn Them Away.

With the eccentric nut comedian, Jimmie Hodges, as the central laugh figure supported by his lovely co-star, Jean Tyne, and a big time company including a wealth of feminine beauty, Pretty Baby is the ear tickling, eye pleasing farce with music which is opening the season at the New Palace. Scores were turned away last night unable to gain admittance to the theater as the house was over sold before the performance even started.

Pretty Baby is a high speed combination of fun, girls, song, dance and scenic spectacles. One of the biggest scenes is the patriotic number in which each branch of the service including the Red Cross and finally General Pershing and President Wilson are presented while a swinging war song, "Hello France," is being sung.

Hodges is a nut comedian of the best school. He has the trick of making his freakish observations seem extemporaneous which of course makes them all the funnier, while in Joan Tynes, the company is graced by a girl of great personal beauty possessing a charming singing voice. Elmer Coudy, the black face funster, Al Garbelle, the light comedian and dancing demon, and Norman Coudy, a remarkable basso, are some of the other principals whose work makes Pretty Baby a big time musical comedy.

HOW TO CAN FOOD WITH THE ORDINARY HOME UTENSILS

Adults and Children Easily Can Put Up Fruits and Vegetables by Method Taught to Canning Clubs in the Northern and Western States.

Emergency Desserts.

Fruit Canned at Home.

The United States department of agriculture suggests this general scheme:

Wash your jars; wash rubbers; test rubbers for quality; set empty jars and rubbers in pan of water to heat; fill washboiler to cover jars two inches with water; heat water in washboiler.

Use only fresh, sound fruit; wash the fruit; remove spots when necessary; place all fruit except berries in a square of cheesecloth or wire basket; dip all except berries in boiling water for ½ minute for peaces, and 1½ minutes for apples and pears; plunge for a moment into cold water; skin the fruit if necessary; leave whole or cut, as preferred.

Pack fruit in hot jars; fill jars with hot sirup or boiling water; place tops and rubbers in position; tighten tops, not air-tight; place jars on false bottom in washboiler; submerge jars two inches; put cover on washboiler and let water boil for 16 minutes for peaches, and 20 minutes for apples and pears; start counting when water begins to boil.

Remove jars; tighten tops, air-tight; invert jars to discover leaks; if leaks are found, change rubbers and boil again for 5 minutes; wrap jars; store in cool, dry place.

To Make Sirup.

Formula No. 1 (sweeter than No. 2.)—Three quarts of sugar; two quarts of water; boil until sugar is dissolved; skim off impurities; keep it hot.

Formula No. 2 (not so sweet.)—Two quarts of sugar; three quarts of water; boil until sugar is dissolved; skim off impurities; keep it hot.

SOUTH WOOD PARK FORT WAYNE'S SUPREME SOUTH SIDE DEVELOPMENT

SOUTH WOOD PARK IS NOW READY TO RECEIVE THE PEOPLE OF FORT WAYNE

Planned and Developed by Hilgeman & Schaaf, "of Harrison Hill."

To the People of Fort Wayne:

South Wood Park, which already has claimed the title of "Fort Wayne's Supreme South Side Development," is not a dream.

It is a reality.

We invite you TODAY to come and see for yourselves.

Without blare of trumpets to proclaim to you what we INTEND to do, we have gone ahead quietly to prepare for sale this splendid place of future beautiful drives, homes, parkways and landscape gardening. And now that the work is far enough along to permit you to comprehend the bigness and the thoroughness of the plan, we give you a cordial invitation to become acquainted at once with South Wood Park.

South Wood Park A Descriptive Name.

You who are familiar with the beautiful tracts included in this largest of all south side developments will recognize the descriptive character of the name. The large areas of woods are graced by hundreds of immense forest trees, representing the finest native specimens.

How South Wood Park Is Being Developed.

A personal visit to South Wood Park at the earliest possible moment will give you the fullest idea of the method of development of these great areas of forest and open grounds. We have placed miles of temporary low fencing which outlines the driveways and the lot lines.

All Modern Improvements For South Wood Park.

The present condition of the development does not give you, however, a full understanding of the finished streets or of the modern improvements to be provided. These include: Paving, sidewalks, ornamental boulevard lighting, sewer, water and gas.

The Winding Driveways In South Wood Park.

We are particularly proud of the design of the long stretches of driveway through the wooded portions of South Wood Park to save hundreds of the finest forest specimens and at the same time give the purchaser liberal areas of tree-covered parkways.

What the Development Means to Fort Wayne.

The most enterprising cities of America have attained to their place in the estimation of the world through the efforts of those citizens who have unbounded faith in the future of those cities, and who have worked hard to made their "dreams" come true. We have that same faith in Fort Wayne. "South Wood Park is a step away ahead of the times," someone has said. But we know that Fort Wayne will prove to the world her worthiness of the faith we have in the making of this great south side tract into a spot which shall help her upward and onward in her march toward greater things.

We urge you to get acquainted with South Wood Park. Visit the place often. There is much to see and to learn. We are not going to tell you that we want you to buy a home-site there and to join with many others in developing the place into a spot which shall be the pride of all Fort Wayne. When you see South Wood Park, the thought will come to you without our suggestion. And that's why we ask you to make yourself at home in this beautiful place.

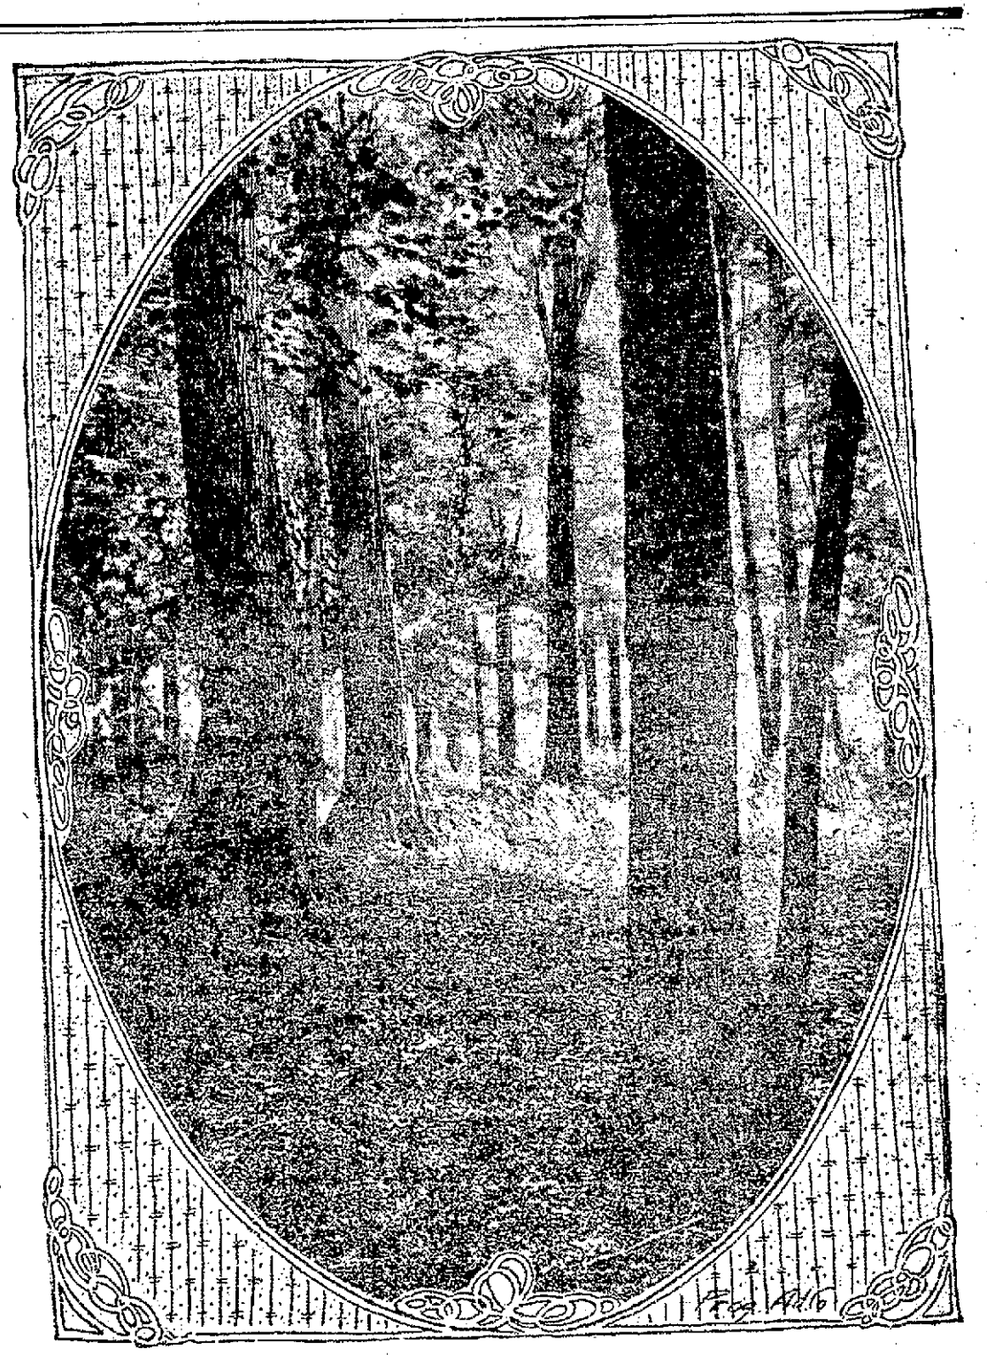
This photograph, made in Arcadia Court (Hilgeman & Schaaf development) shows how the streets and parkways in South Wood Park are being laid out. A visit to South Wood Park shows the superiority of this plan.



In cutting the streets and boulevards through the forest in South Wood Park, the landscape architect has been guided by the desire to preserve hundreds of the finest specimens of the forest. The photograph is a typical view in the broad wooded section of South Wood Park.

Our Greatest Industrial Asset

It is the foundation of the whole industrial structure.

The far-reaching fingers of transportation touch field, mine and factory and galvanize them with life.

Business would become one gigantic paralytic but for the life-giving throb of the locomotive.

The New York Central Lines

operating over 12,000 miles of railway in the most populous section of the United States, employing nearly 200,000 men and equipped with every device and facility for the safe and efficient handling of passengers and freight, are essential to the prosperity of the territory they serve.

To continue to render the public and the government efficient service demands constant expenditures of millions of new capital, for a railroad is never finished except in a community that is dead.

The necessary funds must be secured in competition with world-wide borrowing and only as the public and the government see to it that the railroads are granted rates that will provide a fair return and that regulation is constructive, will railroad securities attract new capital.

PROTECTING HIMSELF AND THE STATE LAWS

Excuse Given by George Foster for Carrying a Revolver and Badge.

In answer to a query, why he was carrying a loaded revolver with him, George Foster, an aged man who was charged with impersonating an officer, stated that he carried a gun in order to protect himself and all the state laws.

He was arrested by Patrolman Vashon, Sunday night, when he flashed a badge at a moving picture show at Ohio and Lewis streets, stating that he wanted to enter because he was looking for a man who was charged with a crime.

He was found guilty in police court Monday morning and Frank Kleekamp, judge pro tem., fined him $15 and costs. The badge which he wore bore the inscription "Chief of Detectives of Indiana Detective Agency." The judge ordered the gun destroyed.

Hit Lady With Axe.

Homer Thomas, colored, was found guilty of striking Laura Bartlett with an axe and fined $10 and costs. Mrs. Bartlett stated that Thomas was drunk and that he came home and struck her in the side with the blunt end of an axe and that he endeavored to strike her the second time. This time he used the sharp end, just missing her foot and cutting a hole in the kitchen floor linoleum.

Case Is Continued.

The case against George Snyder, charged with train climbing, was continued until August 20 and was ordered held under a bond of $200. He is suspected of stealing two bolts of Palm Beach cloth which were found in the car with him.

Court Notes.

William Bruns, an aged soldier, was ordered held under a bond of $50 until next Friday when it is said four brothers will come after him and place him in the soldiers' home.

Carl Rogge, who is charged with three offenses, namely, operating an automobile without a license, public intoxication and refusing to turn to the left in passing the machine driven by Hazel Thompson, was continued until Tuesday morning.

The cases of fornication against Winston Green and Jessie Smith, both colored, were continued until Wednesday morning by motion of the prosecuting attorney. Bonds were fixed at $25 each.

Arthur Degitz, who operates a store on Spring street, was fined $10 and costs for selling cigarettes to a minor.

A fine of $5 and costs wiped out the bond of fifteen dollars given by De Voss Barker on a charge of public intoxication.

Other drunks were disposed of as follows: Charles Baus, $5 and costs; Bob O'Mara, $10 and costs and thirty days; Geirge Kelly, $5 and costs; Henry Krienbrook, $10 and costs; Ben Cing, $10 and costs; Harry Brown, $5 and costs; Herman Hartshorn, $25 and costs and ninety days; Frank Smith, $5 and costs.

THREE BIG DAYS

The first three days of Patterson-Fletcher's Half Price Sale brought larger crowds to their store than any previous sale in the history of the concern. Thursday, the first day, people came from far and near and the firm were well pleased with the results. Friday brought another large crowd, but the climax came Saturday, when three thousand, seven hundred and eighty-six customers made purchases in the store, and all during the day and until closing time the fifty salesmen were hardly able to handle the eager crowd of buyers that thronged the store.

"When we moved into our new home we thought we would have enough room to care for the largest crowds that ever came," said Mr. H. P. Fletcher, when we talked with him Saturday evening, while he was busy helping the boys care for the customers, "but from the looks of the crowds that came today our space could well be larger."

In view of the fact that cotton and wool today is over 50 per cent. higher than last year and that Patterson-Fletcher own their stocks at the old price, the values they are selling are very unusual and the buying public is taking advantage and buying not only for immediate, but for future use.

Today, the fourth day of the sale, finds their store well filled with people who are buying liberally of the many hundreds of values to be had in the various departments.

BOYS GIVEN SHOT IN ARM

Signal Corps Members Are Made Immune from Typhoid Fever.

FOUR OR FIVE OF YOUNG MEN FAINTED

Major Ryan Goes to Fort Harrison to Conduct a Court Martial.

Literally speaking the members of Company B, signal corps, received a "shot in the arm" Monday morning. The boys all underwent treatment to inoculate them against typhoid fever germs. The boys were also vaccinated against smallpox.

Four or five of the young men were unable to stand the treatment of getting the serum shot into their arms and as a result became faint. Cots were provided at headquarters and the men were allowed to lie down.

NEW ATTEMPT TO END KANSAS CITY STRIKE

Traction Company Willing to Accede to Demands Before Strike.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 13.—The next move in the traction strike which began here last Wednesday when more than 2,000 employes of the Kansas City railways company quit work, tying up transportation so completely that not a car has run since, today was placed squarely before the strikers.

Following a conference between the street railway officials and their dissatisfied employes which lasted far into last night, the company presented a tentative proposal to the men which, along general lines, conformed to their demands, made before the walkout was percipitated. Reinstatement of discharged employes and recognition of the men's organization were the cardinal points embodied in the proposal. The traction company offered to re-employ men discharged after August 1, of this year, and would not discriminate against employes because of union affiliations.

THE GREAT WAR MYSTERY

BY F. M. KIRBY.
(Staff Special.)

Orange, N. J., Aug. 13.—Here is the wonderful war mystery!

More thrilling than trench capture. More important than wheat. More romantic than air duels. More engrossing than these and all the rest, because it is still a mystery.

What is the mysterious, secret invention Edison, America's wizard, has perfected to destroy the U-boats. This is the big question mark of the entire world war.

Here are the facts:

1. Almost a year ago it was widely announced that America's electric genius had a marvelous scheme by which electric rays would set off explosives at great distance.

2. Several months ago a prominent member of the naval consulting board of experts announced American inventive genius was about to turn against Germany a mysterious destructive agent that would rid the sea of U-boats.

3. July 14 Edison himself, in one of his rare statements, issued to his subordinates, said cryptically: "We now have all the rebellious elements under control. Today will be remembered as the time when we removed the last jinx from the record."

4. July 20 the navy department permitted the announcement that a device to detect U-boats ten miles away was nearly perfected.

5. A high government official said only a few days ago that Edison had just completed a task that would make him the greatest man in the world.

6. The Westinghouse company leading makers of electric appliances, is enlisting 1,000 men willing to be absolutely locked in from the outside world, holding no communication with it, for ten months, making "war munitions."

7.—Edison, white-haired, had been working for months, 16, 18, 20 hours a day, in a veritable frenzied debauch of sleepless nights and days, on the submarine problem before he made his electrifying unhouncement.

8. No government official will say a word.

Now—what is the conclusion?

1. Was the announcement of the new rays of remarkable power somebody's dream?

2. Was the naval consulting board expert either a liar or a maniac? The board is not made up of that kind of men. Furthermore, his statement was not denied.

3. Did Edison boast wildly when he said he had solved the last war puzzle? Well—you can number 100 magical inventions from Edison's brain. Can you number one boast?

4. Was the navy department talking through its hat when it said U-boats were unmasked 10 miles away.

5. Is the high government official who said Edison had finished a job that would "make him the world's greatest man" Crazy?

6. Is the Westinghouse company turning itself into a prison because it believes that will attract labor in these times of labor shortage?

7. Why doesn't some high official put these speculations to rest by an official denial of them all?

Isn't it plain that, instead of more than the facts being revealed, there exist more facts than have been hinted at?

Jules Verne predicted the U-boat.

John P. Holland built it.

H. G. Wells in his "War of the Worlds" told how the invading inhabitants of Mars used against the earth folk a powerful light ray that burned everything in the path it swept.

Is Edison ready, through a Westinghouse-made machine, to turn this light ray on the German sharks?

The wonderful war mystery is the most gripping war thought today.

It will be the greatest world news item tomorrow.

Wouldn't you like to know, in advance, just what it is?

The regulation referring to them reads: "Any person who is found by local boards to be a member of any well recognized religious sect or organization, organized and existing May 1, 1917, and whose then existing creed or principles forbid its members to participate in war in any form and whose religious convictions are against war or participation therein in accordance with the creed or principles of the said religious organizations."

The war department made public today orders entitling army clerk to wear the uniform of the army with distinguishing marks and also prescribed the uniform for motor drivers, messengers and the like. They will wear regulation oliver drab when with the expeditionary forces, but will wear also white arm bands to distinguish them as non-combatants.

PLAN TO HONOR THE FRIEND OF BABIES

New York, Aug. 13.—Plans were being formulated here today to observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of the work Nathan Straus has done for the children of the city through his milk stations by erecting a suitable memorial in Seward park. The memorial will be a gift from the children of the city, especially those of the east side, where the first milk stations were established by Mr. Straus. The committee appointed yesterday to have charge of the plans will ask Mayor Mitchel to designate a day to be observed throughout the city as Straus day.

GARRETT SHOP TEAM DEFEATS WASHINGTON

Next Game Will Be Played With Philadelphia at Baltimore.

(Special to The Sentinel).

Garrett, Ind., Aug. 13.—The Garrett shop team in the B. & O. league won its game with Washington Sunday by a score of 3 to 1. Jack pitched a one-hit game, which should have been eliminated for it was a lucky scratch and due to the slowness with which the ball was handled. They are now ready for the game with Philadelphia at Baltimore on Labor day. Superintendent Jackson promised the boys new suits if they won the game Sunday.

The second game of the day was with Kendallville and they were easily defeated 11 to 4 in a contest that dragged out two hours, in which five pitchers were used and in which the hitting of Gregg featured for he secured three safe ones.

ALLOWANCE FOR ALIENS

Will Be Accepted in Navy if They Have Taken Out First Papers.

MAY THEN EASILY BECOME CITIZENS

Two Local Boys Enlist in the Naval Branch Monday.

To stimulate naval recruiting an order has been sent to the local officer, A. G. Kaftan, pertaining to cooks and bakers, which will now allow them to enist for the period of the war only, the same as radio men. The regular enlistment period of four years for apprentice seamen being withdrawn as an inducement to fill up this branch of the sea service.

Together with the announcement regarding length of service, it is announced that liens from countries with which the United States are not at war will be acceptable in the United States navy as cooks and bakers. In addition to this their becoming American citizens will be facilitated. The order reads that aliens "may become citizens of the United States without proof of residence on shore and without further requirements except proof of good moral character and a certificate of the secretary of the navy that such honorable service was actually rendered. This rule, however, it was pointed out, applies only to cooks and bakers.

Evidence must be shown, however, that aliens wishing to come under this class must have taken out first naturalization papers. Not only are such persons eligible for service, the order states, but having served honorably for one year, may become citizens of the United States.

Two more recruits were sent to Indianapolis Monday morning by the local recruiting officer. They were Edward Thurber Groves Jackson, 1230 Swinney avenue, and Albert Frederick Wesling, 236 Brackenridge street. Both applied for enlistment as apprentice seamen and passed the examination here and will be further examined at Indianapolis before being sent to the naval training station.

Enlistment in the navy is progressing rapidly here, according to the local officer, but the navy is far from filled up. Many men are applying for enlistment now who know they are to be called up for examination in the army draft in a short time. It was recently made public that men who have passed the examination for the navy will have cause for exemption from the army draft board. It was stated that any person who knows that he will have to go before the examining board for the army may apply for enlistment in the navy and having passed the examination may be exempted from army service even after he has received his notice to appear for examination.

AGED FATHER SAYS HE WILL NOT HELP SON

Andrew Bennett and Step-Daughter Returned from Toledo, Ohio.

The aged father of Andrew Bennett, 52 years old, who was brought back Sunday from Toledo, O., on the charge of contributing to the delinquency of his step daughter, Mary Frazier, has refused to help his son out of his present predicament. The senior Bennett says he has gone to the rescue of his son on many other occasions, but that now he is through. The son will have to fight it alone so far as the father is concerned.

Both Bennett and his stepdaughter were brought back from Toledo, by Deputy Sheriff W. H. Cole. The girl is charged with absenting herself from the jurisdiction of the juvenile court. She had scarcely landed in Toledo when she was taken in custody. While at the detention home she is alleged to have attempted to escape and when caught is said to have pointed a revolver at Mrs. Rosa Castel, matron of the institution. The matron ordered her to drop the pistol and when she refused Stella Syzmenski, an assistant matron, grabbed the weapon from her hand. She is said to have smuggled the revolver into the home in her handbag. Bennett is a prisoner at the county jail, and up to late hour was unable to furnish bond.

AUTO THIEF ALLOWED TO GO UNPUNISHED

Carl Johnson, 704 West Creighton avenue, stole an automobile Saturday night. However, he is a member of the signal corps in this city, which was drafted into federal service a week ago when the company mobilized. He was allowed to go unpunished on this account.

Following a special session of court Sunday morning Judge Kerr ordered that the young man be allowed to go. This action has caused much comment in police circles.

It is said that this is the third time that a member of one of the military companies in the city was found guilty of a charge in police court, but each time was turned over to the commanding officer of the company of which he was a member.

The prosecuting attorney it is understood is to start an investigation and it is probable that Johnson will be brought back into court to face the charge. According to the new law on vehicle taking, the crime which he is charged with is punishable with imprisonment for six months.

The machine which Johnson stole belonged to Conor Blackwood, proprietor of the Conwood hotel in Chicago. Blackwood allowed his machine to stand in front of the Anthony hotel Saturday evening while he and his wife went in to register. He returned a few minutes later and found the car was gone.

He was directed to police headquarters where every patrolman was notified. Blackwood and his wife in another car started a search for the car themselves. Near the Lake Shore hotel Mrs. Blackwood saw a car coming and recognized it. Mr. Blackwood stepped in front of the car and stopped it.

Johnson endeavored to escape, but was unable to get away. Blackwood seized the young man and held him until the police arrived. Johnson said he came from a respectable family and that this was the first time in his life that he had ever taken anything.

The young thief said that he had heard that the signal corps would leave the city Monday and that he had taken the car to go to Churubusco to say good-bye to his brother.

IN THE GREAT SAHARA, WHERE NATURE TRENCHES THE SAND, AS SEEN THROUGH THE MAGIC EYE IN THE SKY

The mysterious Eye in the Sky is keeping the Arabs of the Sahara under the thumb of the French. Dame Nature is the only warrior who can trench the desert sand. So the French army officers refused to throw away their men putting down Arab guerilla warfare started by German spies and money.

With a few airplanes they patrol a territory three times as large as France. One squint at the manbird usually frightens the natives into submission. If that doesn't, one bomb does. Not a French life has been lost, but the desert is as orderly as a desert can be.

No traveler's word picture can make the great Sahara as interesting as this sky view, taken from an airplane at high altitude. The old Moorish fortress city of Tiksebt, which outruns history, is shown in the foreground, and, behind, date palms growing between sand dunes, and fed by underground flow of water.

BRITAIN SEEKS THE SUPERMAN

Remaking Young Race of Anglo-Saxons Goes on in War Crucible.

A Place in England, July 16.—(By Mail.)—British military authorities are convinced that the day of the superman has arrived and that the part he has to play in ending the war and regenerating the world cannot be overestimated.

A representative of the Associated Press who was permitted to visit a great training school as the guest of the foreign office, obtained an insight to the remarkable change brought about in the British viewpoint during the past three years.

The British are not only putting forth all their energy in further perfecting their fighting forces but are actually and earnestly devoting themselves to the development of their youth in a manner calculated to fit them for any or all events which may arise in the years to come.

Britain Grows Stronger.

If the Germans cherished the idea of eliminating Britain as a world power, Britain, it is said, far from being beaten, now sees with a clearer vision than ever before and is preparing to turn the scales against her adversary in such a way as they may never again swing back. While statesmen are being made or unmade with the changing fortunes of war, the great silent forces of a nation proud of its traditions and thoroughly aroused to its own shortcomings are constantly marching in an almost endless chain, from training schools to battle fronts and back again. Stretched over many miles of rolling hills, carpeted with green foliage is the school wherein hundreds of thousands of British youth are being taught to master themselves, as one of their instructors expressed it, "so that they will be better prepared to master their enemy and live their lives as they would live them."

Training in Self-Belief.

"Use your eye and brain" is the new British watchword which is being instilled into the British youth with all the force at the command of his superiors.

"We are training our men to believe in themselves," said the general commanding the school. "Each must not only feel that he is better equipped physically and mentally than his antagonist, but he must be able to demonstrate it. That is the lesson we have learned from the world war."

As the average Britisher is naturally a sportsman, his games are being made to play an important part in his training. In shooting, bombing and all the various art sof warfare, these are proving invaluable to him.

"I have been very much impressed with the fact that most men who are prominent in our games distinguish themselves at the front," declared the general. "They are keen, thoughtful and clear-sighted and for that reason become the best fighters.

The "Three B's" of Warfare.

Unlike the armies of other belligerents, the British are discarding what are termed weapons of frightfulness and instructing their young men in what they are pleased to call the "Three B's"—the bullet, bayonet and bombs.

"Experience has shown that the rifle and bayonet are the best defensive weapons with which to arm a man," asserted one official.

"If he has the proper physcial and mental training and knows how to handle his rifle and his bayonet, he is certainly the match, if not the superior of his adversary."

With a single eye to their task the British have established elaborate systems of trenches wherein the young men are taught every conceivable method of present-day warfare.

Message to America.

Young officers and others recommended for promotion are regularly brought back from the front for intensive training of from ten to twenty days, so that they may return to the front and instruct their respective units. In this way their men never become stale and are ever fit and ready for any emergency.

The message the British would impart to their American allies was summarized as follows:

"Train your young men to be physically and mentally strong; train them to think for themselves—make them supermen, in the modern sense—and the world will be made safe for democracy."

CAME TO CITY FROM MEXICO

Drew Knife When Told to Get Away from Power Station.

Admitting that he came to the United States from Mexico and that he had been in Fort Wayne for the past three weeks without taking out restricted zone permit papers, Frank Koch, a German, was ordered Monday turned over to the sheriff of Allen county, who will turn him over to federal authorities for investigation. He was tried in police court on a charge of drunkenness Monday morning.

Koch was arrested Saturday night when he was ordered to stay away from the power station on Spy Run avenue. He was told to get away, but insisted on returning. Upon being told the third time, Koch is alleged to have taken out a knife. One of the employes of the power house whipped out his gun and held him until the patrol arrived.

Koch, who gives his age at 37 years, said he left Germany seven years ago. He emphatically denied that he had ever served in the German army. He said the authorities had turned him down when he presented himself for examination.

In his cell in the police station Koch said that he fled from his native country seven years ago and became a fireman on the ship Kronprinzessin Cecelie, which was interned in the Boston harbor shortly after the beginning of the war. Koch states, however, that this was nearly seven years ago and that he deserted when the ship reached an American port on one of its trips to this country.

Officials are prone to believe that the man is a German spy and that he escaped after the ship was interned in Boston harbor. This theory bears more weight, say officials, since the men admits that he was in Mexico the first part of the year. They say that it is probable that he received instructions there from another representative of the German government just what was expected of him.

The man, who does not appear as a German, seemed surly in police court and kept watching an imaginary spot on the floor while Prosecutor Hoffman was asking him questions.

Koch stated that he had taken out his first papers of naturalization somewhere in California, but that he had lost them. In speaking of the permit papers he said he had taken out a paper in Texas and that he did not know he was compelled to take them out again in this city. He could not show the permit which he said he had taken out in Texas.

The man said that he was a brewery worker and that he had been employed by a local brewing company since arriving in this city.

Men in Charge of the Defense of Torpedoed Tanker Held.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 13.—Sinking of the American steamer Campana, a Standard Oil tanker, with the probable capture of its captain and four members of the naval guard by the attacking German submarine, is announced by the navy department.

The department statement says:

"The Standard Oil tanker Campana, American steamer, was sunk by a submarine on the morning of Aug. 6, 143 miles west of Ile de Re. Forty-seven survivoors reached land in safety. It is believed the captain of the steamer and four of the armed guards are prisoners on board the German submarine."

The Campana was formedly the steamship Dunholme. It was built in 1901 at West Hartlepool, Eng., and was registered at 3,313 tons gross; 2,134 tons net. It was 335 feet long, with a beam of forty-seven feet.

CAMPANA 38TH VICTIM.

New York, Aug. 13.—The Campana, reported sunk by a U-boat, was the thirty-eighth American merchant ship destroyed through the operations of German and Austrian submarines and raiders since the war began.

Thirteen of these ships were sunk before the United States entered the war, April 6, 1917. The total tonnage of the ships lost is about 113,000 tons, including 64,000 tons sunk since April 6.

No American ships fell victims to the central powers in 1914, and only two in 1915, and the same number in 1916.

When Germany began its unrestricted submarine warfare, however, attacks on American shipping became more frequent, and America lost nine ships between that date and the time when the United States declared a state of war existed with that country.

The first American ship sunk was the William P. Frye, Jan. 28, 1915.

GUN CREW SINKS U-BOAT.

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 13.—Another German submarine has been sunk by the guns of a merchantman, if the gunners of a British freighter, which arrived here, are correct in their assumption that three shots which struck an undersea boat off Brest, France, sent it to the bottom. The Britisher encountered the submarine on its last outward trip from this port.

One shot destroyed the periscope. The second and third were followed by an explosion and the submarine disappeared. The gunners were confident the submarine went down involuntarily.

The captain and the six members of the crew of the American schooner John Hays Hammond, victims of a German submarine July 27, while on a voyage from England to Iceland, have arrived here on an American steamship. Cable dispatches telling of the loss of the schooner had said nothing of the fate of the crew.

The men said they were picked up by a British destroyer, 340 miles northeast of the Irish coast, after being twenty-four hours in their life boats.

Crowd of 2,600 Witnesses Second Defeat of the Locals.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 12.—Fort Wayne dropped the second game of the series to Peoria in a fast contest, 3 to 1, which was witnessed by 2,600 fans. The crowd would have undoubtedly been greater than this had it not been for threatening weather. Nelson's pitching was too much for the Chiefs, while Kowalski was touched frequently by the Distillers.

Kowalski pitched consistently in the third inning when he allowed three runs and the game to go to Peoria. At other times Kowalski was invincible. In the fourth session Smith, Fort Wayne's leading batsman tripled and scored the Chief's only run on a Texas leaguer to left. This was the way the Chiefs got their single marker.

Peoria's runs in the third were scored by some fast base running aided by Kowalski's bobbles. Peckous singled and was followed by Callahan who doubled to right. On a wild heave by Kowalski, Peckous scored and Callahan went to third. Nelson drew a bye and Bashang singled to left scoring Callahan. Nelson went to third on Jackson's sacrifice and came in with the third marker on a short sacrifice fly to right, Glockson's throw to the plate being wide.

After the third inning Kowalski settled down and pitched air-tight ball and had the Chiefs been hitting the game need not have been rewed by Peoria's two-run lead.

By Paul Purman.

Walter Johnson has come to the point where he must seriously consider the possibility of not winning twenty games this season.

For Johnson, this is unheard of.

He fell below that mark in 1916 it is true, but that was his first year in big league company. Since then he has always been well above the twenty game mark.

With less than two months to go Johnson has won 11 and lost 13 games. For the first time since 1909 he is below the list of 500 pitchers at this stage of the season.

With the exception of Joe Bush, of the Athletics, he has lost more games than any other American league pitcher.

In former years it has been true that Johnson has lost games because of poor support and weak hitting. In the height of his career a considerable number of his losses were due to his club being unable to make a run or two.

But this has not been the case this year. Johnson has lost many games when his teammates have piled up half a dozen or more runs behind him.

To break into the class of twenty winning pitchers this year Johnson, if he pitches no more frequently than he has, must win five out of the six games.

It is scarcely probable that he will pitch in many more than ten ball games this season. This means that he must pitch supermen and must not save himself.

All of which brings up the question: Is Johnson going back?

That cry is often raised when a ball player does not come up to high marks of other years, but in this case I would say so emphatically.

Johnson has been experimenting. In this case the experiments were costly to his record but not particularly to him.

Johnson had reached the point where he realized his magnificent speed could not be entirely depended upon for many years. It was up to him to devise other means of winning ball games.

Johnson has not lost his bullethke speed—he is just conserving it. In the meantime he has been developing a good slow ball, which in years to come may rival Matty's fadeaway. He is spending a great deal of time perfecting his curves.

Watch Johnson go through a ball game and notice the difference between the Johnson of today and the Johnson of three or four years ago.

Then every ball zipped by the plate with terrific speed. The batters, as a general rule, were waiting warily.

Now there is an assortment of curves and slow balls and very occasionally a burst of the old time speed. The latter don't worry. He has taken a toe hold.

During the first months of this season Johnson had not reached a maximum efficiency in using his new product. But he refused to try to go through games using nothing but speed and his averages suffered.

But Johnson has developed his curves and speed to a high efficiency and his latest games show he still has a lot to keep the batters guessing.

Johnson is not going back. He has several years before him, and his resolution in taking up curve and slow ball pitching show that he is seriously interested in pitching winning ball for many seasons.

The best of American league batters declare Johnson has as much stuff on the ball as he ever had, but is not using so much speed.

Clark Griffith told me recently that he expected Johnson to be as effective in 1918 as he has ever been in his career.

Eddie Ainsmith, who always catches Johnson, declares he has all of his former speed when he wishes to use it.

So much for stories that Johnson is going back.

Stories that Johnson has not been trying may be dismissed.

Walter Johnson is one of the most earnest, hard working players in the game. When he is on the mound he is always putting forth his best efforts. Also Johnson's high priced contract expires this year and he has additional incentive for being out there trying.

PENNSY AND BOWSERS STRENGTHEN LEADS

Leader and Second-Place Team Winners in Shop League Games.

In the shop league games Saturday the Pennsy and Bowser teams came out on top, winning from the Turner and General Electric teams, respectively. The Bowsers now have a good hold on the first place in the shop league, with the Pennsy outfit safely entrenched in second place.

The Pennsy-Turner match was an interesting one all the way, the railroaders winning out in the ninth inning 10 to 9, after the gym men had apparently acquired a safe lead. Distel and Grimes opposed each other in this game, and both were hit rather freely. Oberwitte, Hargrave and Lowe led in the hitting.

The game between the Bowser and Electric works teams was rather one-sided, the oil tankers winning 8 to 1 in a six-inning affair. Errors by the losers were responsible for most of the Bowser runs. The scores:

Pennsylvania ... 0 1 3 0 0 1 0 3 2—10
Turners ... 0 0 0 0 1 2 2 2 1— 9

Summer Complaint.

During the hot weather of the summer months some member of almost every family is likely to be troubled with an unnatural looseness of the bowels, and it is of the greatest importance that this be treated promptly, which can only be done when the medicine is kept at hand. Mrs. F. F. Scott, Scottsville, N. Y., states, "I first used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy as much as five years ago. At that time I had a severe attack of summer complaint and was suffering intense pain. One dose relieved me. Other members of my family have since used it with like results."—Advertisement.

FOUR FOOTBALL STARS ON CINCINNATI TEAM

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 13.—The Cincinnati Nationals boast of a quartette of players who made themselves famous as gridiron players before their entrance into professional base ball. The four men are Manager Christy Mathewson, Jim Thorpe, the Indian, Earl Neale and Bill Kopf.

Matty was a line plunger and a famous drop kicker when he was with Bucknell. Thorpe, as a member of the Carlisle Indians, was ranked as probably the greatest player the game ever saw. Neale attended a college in the middle west, and was a great man in squirming past opponents, while Kopf was one of the best players on a Fordham eleven.

NORTH RANDALL TRACK SCENE OF SECOND MEET

Expected to Be Greatest Event of Grand Circuit Racing Schedule.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 13.—The second meet at the North Randall track this season opens today and continues throughout the week, Saturday being held in reserve in case rain caused a postponement during the first days of racing. Horsemen predict this will be the biggest and most successful meeting of the grand circuit schedule, with five races per day, practically assured. Originally twenty-one races were scheduled, but the entry list was so heavy track officials have decided to split four of the largest events, making a list of twenty-five races. In each of the split events the horses will race for the same amount of money that would have been hung up had the entry list been smaller and one section started:

Today's program follows: 2:09 trotting, three heats, $1,200; 2:07 pace, three heats, $1,200; two-year-old trotting "news" sweep stake, two in three added money; 2:17 pace, three heats, $1,000.

COLLEGE SPORTS

Kalamazoo college will resume all athletics in the fall, according to Coach R. O. Young, who is planning his football campaign.

Despite the loss of Taylor, MacGregor, Hall Emerson, Casteel and a string of reserves, the coach is optimistic in his view of the season's prospects. Fort Sheridan and the regular army have called eight of the 1916 champion M. I. A. A. team and he expects to lose several more through the national army.

Young is basing his hope on the incoming class, which it is expected will eclipse last year's record. The list of new students include a fine array of young athletes, the coach says.

The 1917 schedules, besides the usual games with the M. I. A. A. teams, will provide contests with the University of Michigan, University of Detroit, M. A. C. and Notre Dame.

East Lansing, Mich., Aug. 13.—Chester L. Brewer, the new athletic director of the Michigan Agricultural college, will take up his duties about September 1, according to a letter to President Kedzie. He was to have reported August 1, but was summoned by the government to take charge of physical training at Camp Funston, Texas.

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 13.—Walter O. Lewis, former Indiana university athlete, has been chosen athletic director of Earlham college, according to announcement made by the athletic authorities of the college here. Lewis, who at present is deputy prosecuting attorney of this (Wayne) county, coached the Earlham baseball team last spring and won much favorable comment.

LINCOLN LIFES ARE LEADING THE LEAGUE

Victory Over Hicksville Gives Insurance Men Clear Title.

At a meeting of their rivals over the Hicksville Browns in the second game of the double-header at League park Sunday, the Lincoln Life nine won the championship of the Independent league. The Browns won the first game, and this earned the right to meet Main Court's team in the second.

The Lincoln Life boys had hard going in the first game, but were for a time in a winning mood. Bud Deer's six hits in the opening with three runs out of four times at bat. Although the remainder of his mates were held, they did their damage.

The Hicksville team led at the first inning with two runs, but were held in check from that time until the eighth, when they scored two more, repeating in the ninth. Two big innings were enough for the Lincoln boys to win, getting four in the third and four in the seventh. Cressmeyer followed "Lefty" Gilbert on the mound and held the Ohio men to five hits.

In the first game of the double-header the Browns had things their own way, winning 8 to 1, in a five-inning match. "Lefty" Bowman pitched for Convoy but was given ragged support. The scores:

FIRST WOMAN WATCHMAN A PATRIOT

ON ACCOUNT of the war" is an old, old expression to us now, but it never had more of meaning and accuracy as an explanation for unexampled things than it has today. It has been used to explain everything from a shortage of chicken feathers for feather beds to the extraordinarily high cost of a ton of coal; and now it is given us the reason for this story.

"On account of the war!" That expression, like sweet charity, covers a multitude of sins—and enables the sinner to escape unscathed by public opinion; so——

This story will tell about what women can do "on account of the war." Not only what they can do, but what they are expected to do, what they already have undertaken in some instances.

To the elder of the Daughters of the Revolution who have heard their grandmothers tell of the stirring times in which their men fought for the liberty of the United States; to those kind, lovable, gray-haired women who sacrificed their loved ones that the North and South might decide in the only possible way the differences that threatened disruption of the Union; the tale of what women today must do will seem preposterously unreasonable.

Perhaps they have read and been told of what European women have done since the beginning of the war and how thousands of their sisters in the munitions centers of this country aided the allies with their skilled fingers and hands; but they have never made personal application of the things they have read and listened to.

They never have visualized themselves at a swiftly-revolving lathe, at a noisy, thunderously thumping machine for days and days, performing an allotted task that must be done to provide necessaries for the army. They have never grasped the fact that each one of them, as well as the people in foreign countries, might have to contribute of personal service in back-wearying, ear-deafening labor; and even with the declaration of war they have not been convinced of the need for women in those spheres of life and work formerly held, almost sacredly, to be man's exclusively.

Most of them remember the days of the other wars—especially the war between the states. They know what was done in those times: That the women stayed palpitatingly at home, nervously preparing bandages and lint, breathing a prayer hourly that none of the essentials they made might be needed for a loved one. Theirs was a work of mercy and waiting; today, woman is called on to labor in the field of destruction, or to enter the pursuits of peaceful commerce that men may be released for the duty of fighting.

Women Crossing Watchmen.

There will be no weary days of waiting for news from the front while the women of the neighborhood gathered in morosely silent groups—today for the women there will be action—eager, hurried, helpful action, uniting with the sacrificing efforts of father, son, brother and sweetheart to bring more quickly to an end the days of destruction.

Big business has been quicker to realize all these things than have the women themselves. It is hard to tell which should have the greater interest in women's new phase, the woman herself, or big business, for whom she will work. Probably it is the latter.

With the first call for volunteers to fill up the ranks of the regular army and to provide trained officers for new armies, business began to experience shortage of male help. Now that the army draft bill has become a law, and it seems likely that at least one young man in every seventeen will be called away immediately, with others to follow soon afterwards, business can see that it is going to have to curtail its activities to an alarming extent or—obtain the aid of women.

The railroads have been the first to act. All the big Eastern lines, the lines operating out of Chicago and the Southern roads with headquarters in St. Louis have taken steps to provide for the use of women in every place that they can suitably perform the duties of positions formerly filled by a man.

In Boston women have been listed for mobilization and 1500 of them are ready to man street cars just as soon as the men now holding these jobs are called to the service of their country.

Detroit also has taken this step and the street car company there has listed a number of women who are ready to take the places of motormen and has announced that it will establish a training class for those desiring to learn the operation of street cars.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, on its lines west of the Ohio River, was the first to put into actual operation its plan for the employment of women to relieve men for military duty and a few days ago the first woman crossing watchman in the United States assumed her post at New Albany, Ind., guarding a crossing over which thousands of vehicles and pedestrians pass daily. She is Miss Mary Travers, 42 years of age, and she has undertaken the work from a patriotic spirit. Here's her own story:

"No," she said, as she acknowledged her 42 years with a bright Irish smile, "I did not have to go to railroading to make a living, but I like the work, and when the opportunity came and I found I could release an able man for Uncle Sam, I took it, to do my little bit to help along.

"And so you want to know who's who at this crossing? You have my name and age. My parents came from Kilkenny. I was born in Cincinnati on old Fulton street, now Gladstone. My father is not a railroad man. By coming here I released John Gossett, a man who was crippled in a wreck during the great flood of 1903, who was sent to Seymour, Ind., to release an able-bodied man for service.

"No, I never expected to receive all the notoriety, the reporters and photographers coming to me, on taking this job, but, of course, I enjoy it as well as any society woman, and everybody is good to me," and she laughed heartily.

Miss Travers is of sturdy, medium build, has bright, laughing gray eyes, firm mouth and a mass of brown hair, done up in a large, tidy knot at the back of her head, on which she wears a brown leather cap with a silver badge over the peak with the word "watchman" engraved upon it. She wore a brown sweater and a serviceable black skirt of heavy material. She is intelligent, self-reliant and attends to her duties with care at the crossing, where the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern has its freight depot for the supply of New Albany, a city of some 25,000 people, and where wagons and trains are continually crossing. She goes to work at 6 a. m. and quits at 6 p. m. and during the twelve hours has very little time to sit down in her watch shanty.

Rain or shine, Miss Travers has to be out with her signal flag. The ladies of New Albany have made her a white silk flag with a mahogany staff.

"Since the women may vote," Miss Travers called after the reporter, "they must do their bit for the government."

Miss Travers took the place through the suggestion of H. R. Gibson, division engineer, a friend of the Travers family, when Miss Travers hinted that she was willing and able to do her share in helping out.

Others Follow the Leader.

The railroad did not stop with this one acquisition to its crossing watchwomen force. Another was immediately put to work at Springfield, Ill., and two at Lawrenceville, Ind. Since that time others have been placed on the system, and the road hereafter will use only such men as are totally unfit for even the light duties about a freighthouse or in other departments of railroad work, using women at the crossings wherever volunteers for the work can be obtained.

This same road began a campaign to forward the use of women in all its departments except those directly concerned with the operation of trains. Circular letters were sent to all heads of departments asking for information as to the number of women that could be employed in those departments to do the work formerly handled by men, and the officials, according to reports, have been co-operating fully, designating places for women wherever it seemed likely the gentler sex could satisfactorily fill even a portion of a job which a man has been attending to in the past.

As a result of the campaign, within a space of a few days, 45 women clerks, 16 stenographers, 2 operators, 5 telephone operators, 3 janitresses and 2 agents were placed at their new duties and a corresponding number of young men released for actual military service. This number has been greatly augmented since and is being increased daily, as men volunteer or are drafted from the service of the railroad to other work.

Nor will the labors of women in the railroad field be limited to the occupations named. It is planned to use some as dispatchers, after a period of training and careful watching under the tutelage of men experienced in such work, and even the civil engineering corps has been asked to use all the women who can be found mentally equipped for the work of maintaining the transportation lines in suitable condition to handle a large volume of heavy traffic.

According to advices from Eastern points, the Pennsylvania, Erie, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Lehigh Valley, the New York, New Haven and Hartford, the New York Central and the Long Island railroads are putting women in clerical positions as fast as they can be obtained to fill the places of hundreds of men called away from the railroad service when the militia of the Eastern States was mobilized.

The Erie has placed a number of women at work as ticket sellers, a post requiring wide knowledge of the country, through familiarity with railroads and their routes, times and runs of trains and the prices of tickets, as well as just which of many possible forms is the proper one to use for a certain trip. They also are planning to replace their train auditors, who collect tickets in place of the conductors, with women, and it is possible that the time will come when even the conductors themselves will give way to uniformed women, in so far as passenger trains are concerned.

Women have been employed in the freight departments to a greater extent than any other in the past, but their work mostly has been stenographic. Now they will begin to take over all clerical work and will even assume the superintendency of car loading in freighthouse cars for small shipments, a post that requires almost as much knowledge as that of ticket seller.

In the past it has been customary to employ young men in these jobs, using them at posts to test the reliability of the youngsters, a fact that made the positions stepping stones to responsible railroad positions. These large numbers of young men who are able, intelligent and accustomed to strict obedience of printed orders, violation of which would cause loss of freight on the part of the railroad company, will be released as part of the country's finest material for a new army; and they will be incorporated into the federal service just as quickly as the draft law becomes definitely effective.

On some roads it always has been customary to employ women, generally dependents of men incapacitated in the service, as car washers at the terminals. Now all the roads have adopted the plan of employing women for this work, and thus has been released a large number of men too old for actual military service, perhaps, yet able enough to take up the work of younger men in some other department of the railroad, thus, through several switched employes, releasing other men for the country's defense.

No longer is it the part for "men to work and women to weep"; no longer do the limits of Red Cross possibilities mark the extent of women's belligerent activities, for now in the hour of need, as always when he is stumped, man turns to women for aid and sustenance in carrying out his projects for their mutual welfare; and woman, herself, is delighted to find that new and unexpected, but long-desired, fields of usefulness have been opened up to her "on account of the war."

BRING DOWN TWO PLANES

Over Score Persons Are Killed, Including Children.

London, Aug. 13.—Two of the German machines which yesterday evening raided the English southeast coast watering places were destroyed by British naval airplanes. The official statement issued by the government today says that one of the machines was a Gotha airplane and the other a seaplane.

About twenty German airplanes raided the southeast coast of Eguland last evening, killing twenty-three persons, including nine women and six children, and injuring fifty others, according to an official announcement made last night.

Two Others Hurt.

The casualties were at South End, according to the statement. This is a town in Essex, forty miles east of London. The statement adds that considerable damage to property was caused also by the bombs dropped at South End. Nearly forty bombs were dropped on the town.

Bombs also were dropped on the seashore resort of Margate, eighty miles southeast of London.

Two men were injured at Rochford, but four bombs dropped on Margate did little damage. The latest statement follows:

"Enemy raiders caused considerable damage at South End, where they dropped about forty bombs. The casualties thus far reported are:

"Killed, eight men, nine women, six children.

"About fifty people were injured.

"At Rochford two men were injured, but no damage is reported. At Margate four bombs were dropped. One uninhabited house was demolished, but there were no casualties."

"About 6:16 o'clock this afternoon a squadron of about twenty enemy airplanes were reported off Felixstowe (in Suffolk.) They skirted the coast to Clacton (Essex), where they apparently divided, a part going south to Margate (in Kent). The reminder crossed the coast and went southwest toward Wickford, near which place they turned southeast and dropped bombs in the neighborhood of South Bend (in Essex)."

Policy of Extinction.

"While there was some prospect of being able to retain or even enlarge their empire, the Turks although treating their subject races badly, did not actually seek to destroy them. Today, knowing themselves doomed, it is their calculated policy to kill off the bulk of the inhabitants of Palestine and extort the last ounce of money and goods from them so that if they are forced to vacate the country they will leave behind them a desert of poverty stricken and depopulated land.

"Their policy is not consistent with military or economic needs and is not supported by even the slenderest pretexts for its necessity. It is dictated solely by a savage brutality. The Turk has in the past shown some aptitude for diplomacy, if little for statesmanship, but the modern young Turk of the committee of union and progress is an infinitely worse tyrant than his predecessors and all the native savagery and blood lust that are his heritage found vent in deliberate and organized crimes. He works untrammeled by diplomatic convention and reckless of the inevitable consequences. Germany has exercised no restraining influence and indeed shares largely in the Ottoman guilt.

Repetition of Armenia.

"Palestine is today somewhat cut off from the world and news of the dreadful happenings within its borders reaches civilization slowly. It is usually impossible to learn the fate of individuals but a good general idea of the situation is in our hands.

"The disaster that befell the Armenian nation is now being meted out to the mixed non-Turkish population of Syria and Palestine. Families are being massacred, towns and territories evacuated, communities plundered and given over to pillage.

"The town of Gaza was recently ordered evacuated. In pursuance of the order the inhabitants were forced to set out upon their journey with nothing but the clothes they wore. All their belongings were left in their homes and these were immediately delivered over to the Turkish troops for loot. There were the usual scenes of wanton destruction and wilful defilement. No women were spared the customary accompaniment of a Turkish visitation.

Jerusalem Is Next.

"Gaza having been pillaged and the soldiers not yet being satisfied, it was proposed to carry out the same program at Jerusalem. The notables, however, protested that, having seen the exhibition at Gaza, they prefered to chance the risks of war to enduring the certain agony of a forced evaculation.

"This answer and protest displeased the pasha so much that he promptly had the deputation transported to Anatolia and is taking special measures to see that his scheme of looting Jerusalem is not hindered by organized passive resistance among the inhabitants.

"The system of oppression in Palestine is thorough but it is also stupid and wasteful. Cavalry horses are allowed to graze on such of the scanty young crops as the wretched inhabitants have been able to grow, so that there will be no grain this year in a country which is already well nigh bare of corn."

One case which relieved the monotony of examination routine by causing a certain amount of laughter occurred last week. A man who is employed by a local bank was called for examination. It is said that in his talks with other people he had allowed them to arrive at a definite conclusion just where his sympathies lay in this war. He was passed by the board as physically fit. He stormed about this fact and insisted that he should have been rejected. He stated he intended to file claim for exemption. However, he did not and will march right along with the rest of the boys in freedom's great army ing it the most difficult problem to handle now. The movement of most other foodstuffs is about the same month by month.

Preparation of a form of license under which grain elevators and flour mills will operate after September 1 was begun today.

WHEAT PITS DESERTED.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—The federal government having determined to take over the wheat crop and distribute it, those who went to the visitors' gallery of the board of trade today turned instinctive eyes toward the wheat pit. There, where a tumultuous mob normally is vociferously responsive to scraps of information concerning exports from Argentine or even the appearance of a rain cloud over some dry area in Kansas, there was only silence. Two or three idle traders were seated in chairs near the pit. No one was in it. The clerk ordinarily who sits enthroned in a cage above the pit recording quotations, rested his chin on hand. At the opening he chalked up "2.14" as the sole bid for September wheat, and resumed his reflections. There was no longer a string of messenger boys scurrying between his cage and the telegraph wires. One boy is retained, but at the moment he was down in the street listening to a brass band. The whole scene suggested dust and cobwebs.

Months ago the board adopted maximum prices and other restrictions which practically eliminated speculative trading. News became impotent to effect prices. They were so regulated that even the big news that the wheat farmer would have but one customer failed to reanimate the trade.

Grain men expect to co-operate with Mr. Hoover in the big task of marketing the crop. James A. Patten, one of the big men of the board, said the measure seemed necessary. "There isn't wheat enough to go around," said he. "The government's measure will prevent conflicting interests from bidding the prices skyward to get what there is. While the board fixed maximum prices for futures, it did not touch the spot commodity. Actual wheat for immediate delivery is selling at from $2.40 to $2.60 a bushel, and even higher in Kansas City."

"Possibly during the conversation the emperor wrote a memorandum for the ambassador so that he might not announce anything to Washington that would be incorrect.

"In that case it would be a matter of record destined to assist Mr. Gerard's memory, but it would not be a communication from the emperor to President Wilson."

The Cologne Gazette says there is no apparent reason to doubt the genuineness of the emperor's telegram as published by Mr. Gerard. The newspaper says it cannot see how its contents can serve as a fresh proof of Germany's guilt, as it only gives new evidence of the cunning and ambiguous policy followed by Great Britain in the days prior to the outbreak of the war.

The Neueste Nachrichten of Munich, Bavaria, says it does not matter whether the emperor's message to Wilson is authentic, as it only proves the emperor's lofe of peace.

survey today of the coal situation, preparatory to fixing the price at the mine mouth.

"Under the terms of the contract entered into," said Judge Carter, "my business is to arrive at a fair price for coal at the mine. That is as far as my authority extends."

Approximately 12,000 coal miners are on strike in various mines in Illinois, and a conference of operators and representatives of the executive board of the miners' union has been called to attempt to compose their differences.

Representtaives of the coal mine owners' union and railroads held a meeting today at which Judge Carter presided, for the purpose of agreeing upon details of methods to determine what constitutes a fair price for coal.

MORE MINES CLOSED.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 13.—Thirty-two of the forty coal mines in the Springfield district, representing a daily output of 20,000 tons, are shut down today as the result of strikes among drivers and motor men, and ten thousand diggers are in enforced idleness.

Indications are that not a single mine in the district would be in operation tomorrow. Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois district, United Mineworkers, today ordered all strikers back to work, and declared there would be no wage conference while the mineworkers violated their agreement.

Farrington declared agitation by the state council of defense for lower coal prices and charges that exorbitant profits were being made by operators were responsible for the unrest.

cal life until 1914, when he was lected to the office of trustee of Wayne township. He served in that position until 1916.

Because of technical irregularties in the township trustee's office, Mr. Scherer was removed, following the filing of impeachment proceedings. However, Mr. Scherer retired with all the accounts cleared up and no public loss ensued by reason of his conduct of the office. Mr. Scherer and his friends always insisted that he had no intention of defrauding the township. Even his enemies were charitable enough to believe he meant to fully rectify the irregularities even though they had never been discovered. There was a technical violation, however, and for that reason his retirement followed.

There was never a more likeable citizen that Henry P. Scherer. He made friends readily and kept them. He was always Henry P. Scherer under all circumstances. Mr. Scherer's decline was much more rapid following the death of Mrs. Scherer, who for months prior to her death was almost a helpless invalid.

The deceased was one of the pioneer musicians of the city, and was one of the organizers, and for many years president of the Musician's union. He was one of the pioneer members of the old City band, in its day a famous organization. When not actively engaged in political life, Mr. Scherer was in the real estate business. At one time he was connected with the City Carriage works. He was a life-long member of the St. Paul's Lutheran church.

The deceased also belonged to the Brueederliche Unterstuetzings Verein. Surviving relatives include five children —Fred Scherer, Mathilda Scherer, Louise and Margaret Scherer and Mrs. George Jacobs, jr., all of this city. Two brothers, John and William Scherer, and two sisters, Mrs. A. C. Schmidt and Mrs. Elizabeth Menze also survive.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

PEACE TALK HAS BOARDS

munitions, declaring that the Russian government not only was not interested in the Stockholm meeting but that Premier Kerensky himself hoped the conference would not be held.

A GERMAN VIEW OF IT.

London, Aug. 13.—Commenting on the decision of the British labor conference to send delegates to the socialist meeting at Stockholm, "Vorwaerts," the social organ in Berlin, says, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company:

"We hope when the delegates arrive that they will understand their mission in a different spirit from that indicated by Henderson. They must understand that it is impossible for them to preach a continuation of the war by giving German minority socialists additional evidence against the German government. One single discussion with the Germans will show the English how naive they are. This is an advantage we hope for in the coming discussion. Therefore we rejoice in this step forward. It cannot remain the only step."

QUIET ON WEST FRONT.

BRITISH CHANGE NOTHING.

Amsterdam, Aug. 13—The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger says the decision of the British labor party will not alter anything regarding the hopes attached to the Stockholm conference in view of the changes which have taken place in Russia. The paper does not believe much good will come from the program of the labor party and considers the attitude of the American government more logical in refusing passports to the American delegates.

BARS DOWN TO MATRIMONY.

Berlin, via London, Aug. 13.—The municipal food bureau of Strassburg announces that newly married couples will be entitled to draw double the amount of food indicated on their food cards. This privilege is accorded them for a period of six weeks.

THE FRENCH SOCIALISTS.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The decision of the permanent administrative committee of the French socialist party that French socialist delegates shall go to the international conference at Stockholm, as announced yesterday, places Albert Thomas, minister of munitions and socialist leader, in a delicate position similar to that of Arthur Henderson, British labor leader who resigned as minister without portfolio on Saturday, inasmuch as there is a conflict between the decision of M. Thomas' party and the expressed intentions of the government of which he is a member. In a long speech to his constituents at Champigny, M. Thomas endorsed and explained the decision of the party's committee. He asserted it could not be said the socialists would go to Stockholm to promote a peace based upon compromise, but that they would endeavor to fix before the world responsibility for the war and to affirm what the allies consider to be just and right.

The general opinion expressed in the press is that nothing will come of the meeting of socialists. The Figaro remarks that the committee's program is debatable, but that it is impossible not to recognize the patriotic intentions which inspire it. The result, it says, seems to be to make an impossibility any discussion with Philipp Scheidemann and the German socialists associated with him in which regard it is satisfactory.

NOT READY FOR DISCUSSION.

Berlin, Aug. 13.—Chancellor Michaelis told a newspaper interviewer at Mannheim, Saturday, that the question of government monopoly of raw products for the reconstruction period after the war was not yet ripe for discussion. Strengthening of the nation's economic resources was an implicit need for the future, the chancellor added, especially in the face of threatened trade blockades by enemies.

GERMANS REPULSED.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The Germans attack last night on the Aisne front in an effort to recapture trenches taken by the French on Saturday. Today's official statement says they were repulsed with losses.

The announcement follows:

"Between Cerny and Craonne the enemy's artillery developed pronounced activity, especially in the sector south of Ailles. The Germans attacked in vain at the point at which we captured trenches on Aug. 11. They were repulsed with losses and obtained no result.

"In the Champagne east of Rheims, in the regions of the Casque and the Teton, and on the left bank of the Meuse there were spirited artillery actions. Two surprise attacks by the enemy at Caurieres wood and Bezonvaux were repulsed by our fire. Elsewhere the night was calm.

"Two German airplanes and a captive balloon were brought down yesterday by our pilots. Three other enemy machines were forced to land, having been severely damaged.

SUSPENDED AS NON-NEUTRAL.

Amsterdam, Aug. 13.—The Endhoeven Dagblad has been suspended for a week by the general commanding the Dutch province of North Brandt for publishing July 30 an anti-German article about the sinking of Dutch fish steamers. The general in a letter says: "In view of the strict neutrality of Holland, I consider it unpermissable to apply to one of the belligerents such an epithet as was used."

WAR CROSSES FOR FISHERMEN.

Paris, Aug. 13.—The crews of the fishing smacks of Larochelle who cast their nets July 2 to give battle to a submarine, which they compelled to retreat, have been rewarded by the ministry of marine. War crosses have been given to the captains and also an engineer and quartermaster, who continued to fight after they had been wounded.

The dispatches say four of the Americans were missionaries and names Mr. and Mrs. Naygard, Miss Robinson and Carolyn Thompson.

A Mr. Pointer was saved. Nineteen other missionaries of an organization with headquarters at 356 Bridge street, Brooklyn, N. Y., were saved.

The fifth American who was lost was a Mr. Sumner, address not given. In addition to these five an Englishman named Duckworth, with his American wife and six children, also lost their lives.

Mrs. Duckworth's father lives in Denver, Col. His name has not been ascertained. Among the saved were Mr. Somer and wife, apparently from Meadows, Ill.; Mr. Richey, No. 4616 Evans avenue, Chicago; Mr. Pritchet, No. 1426 Rockland street, Philadelphia; David Lovas, South Dakota; N. F. Braaten, Minneapolis; Mr. Denham, an Australian with an American wife and two children, and a Mrs. Smith, no address given.

MEMBERS OF MISSION.

New York, Aug. 13.—The party of nineteen missionaries who were on boar dthe steamer Athens, sunk by a mine near Cape Town, were members of the African inland mission, which is interdenominational. In addition to the nineteen two children of Rev. and Mrs. Earl L. Camp, members of the party, were aboard the vessel. Charles E. Hurlburd, general director of the organization here said that no word had been received as to the fate of the children. The City of Athens sailed from this port July 12. Miss Helen Robinson, the missionary drowned on the vessel, was the daughter of Bishop C. Robinson of the Methodist missions board in Indiana. Miss Robinson had been in the United States about one year attending an educational institute.

perplexing problems now before the war-making authorities. In order that the war may be carried on successfully the army and navy will have to have immediately on hand enough gasoline for the aeroplanes, truck automobiles, tractors and other machines. There must be no dilly-dallying about this supply of gasoline and there won't be.

Up to the Joy Rider.

"Is is estimated that the army and navy will need for the year 350,000,000 gallons, and there are two ways of obtaining it. In the first place the joy rider whose pleasure is obtained by covering many miles at high speed can voluntarily give this up; the man who takes his family on Sunday for a fifty-mile ride or more can cut this. Every man who drives a machine daily can ask himself if part of his riding cannot be obviated.

"To sum up every automobile owner and driver can be taught to ask himself each morning whether or not his proposed trip is absolutely necessary and act accordingly.

"If the people continue to be thoughtless and unwilling to do their patriot bit in this respect, it may be necessary for the government to take drastic action which will stop excess pleasure use of all automobiles. This is not yet contemplated, so I understand, but it is the only alternative for the refusal of the automobile owners to co-operate and make the necessary voluntary sacrifice.

Half Used For Pleasure.

"It is generally estimated and conceded that one-half of the gasoline used in the United States (one billion, two hundred and fifty million gallons) is used in pleasure riding in my opinion, a judicious use of the automobile for this purpose will cut this amount of gasoline in half, which would mean the saving of more than a million gallons each day in the year."

Director Manning gives a number of suggestions as to how savings in gasoline may be effected and concludes with the statement that his warning does not mean that automobile owners should lay up their cars nor that any one should change his mind about purchasing a car.

GRAIN PITS IGNORE FEDERAL CONTROL

Report of Government Action as Probable Has Little Effect.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 13.—Announcement in general terms of the government plans to rule the wheat and flour business of the country made no important difference in the wheat market today. Prices showed a slightly increased tendency to ease off, but a downward slant of late has been the plain course of prices.

After opening 1c lower at $2.14, September, the market recovered to $2.15. No other option but September was dealt in to any great extent whatever.

Falling off in demand for corn for immediately delivery, especially to distillers, continued to weaken the corn market. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼c to 1c lower with December at $1.14 to $1.14½ and May at $1.11¾ to $1.11½ were followed by a moderate rally and then a fresh setback.

Oats gave way with corn.

Wall Street Trading Shows Higher Bent and Some Firmness.

New York, Aug. 13.—Tobaccos, motor shippings and a few equipments were appreciably higher at the active opening of today's market, some of the first named issues establishing new records.

The more prominent industrials, including steels, were irregular but developed general firmness later.

Aside from slight additional gains in the motors and specialties no changes of more than fractional limits occurred among the leaders during the balance of the forenoon. Dealings were restricted by the uncertain money market.

Liberty bonds were firmer at 99.61 to 99.62.

Y. M. C. A. Building Project Will Be Discussed at Public Meeting Tonight.

Believing that the advice of the citizens should be sought in the matter, the Y. M. C. A. building committee has called a meeting of all citizens interested in the new Y. M. C. A. building, the meeting to be held at the Commercial club at 7:30 o'clock. The committee has found that the cost of erecting the building will be much higher than was at first anticipated, and it is for that reason that the advice of citizens is to be asked before proceeding further. All who are interested in the matter are urged to attend this meeting. No funds will be solicited at that time.

Members of the committee will be present to explain the situation and C. R. Weatherhogg, of this city, and Architect Shattuck, of Chicago, will give their advice and lay before the committee the problems which have arisen. A. H. Perfect is chairman of the building committee.

Peculiar situations confront the building committee. At the time when the funds were subscribed they were ample to complete the structure, but since that time there has been such an advance in the cost of building material that the funds are not now adequate. Many features of the building cannot and, in the belief of the committee, should not be eliminated to reduce the cost.
